

AUGUST CROP REPORT

August Status: Oregon Wheat

Golden fields of grain as the crop has reached maturity in most of the state and harvest has moved past the midway point. The crop appears to be above-average in overall yields.

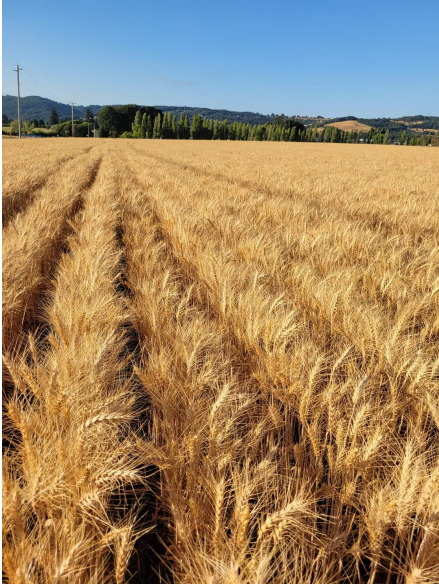

The first weekly crop quality report is now available, but is based on a very limited number of samples so should not yet be used to assess the full crop quality. Representative data on the Pacific Northwest wheat crop is collected during harvest each year, with samples consistently analyzed by the Wheat Marketing Center for the soft white wheat crop.

Wheat Quality Reports

The initial crop quality report is now available from the Wheat Marketing Center. Data is based on a limited number of samples in only a small portion of the production area. Information in this first weekly report should therefore not yet be used as a full reflection of the 2024 crop. For soft white, the first week sampling reflects:

- Lower protein content than average. Opportunities for blending from the significant 2023 crop carryover.
- Higher test weight than average.
- Low moisture.
- Thousand kernel weight higher than the 5-year average, kernel size larger than the 5-year average.
