MARIA TIBBETTS
DIGITAL & SPECIAL
SECTIONS EDITOR

It's hard to write an article about horses these days without typing "DNA" or "genetics." A lot of horses have dollar values attached to their careers, or points, championships or progeny.

I look at pedigrees, though, and think about those foundation bloodlines and how the people who produced and promoted those horses figured out which ones were going to move the breed ahead, were going to meet their goals and get the job done.

Like journalism, which used to involve actually cutting and pasting articles, or typesetting lead letters to print, the horse industry didn't always have convenient tools at their fingertips.

I look back at my granddad's stud books from the 1980s, and the AQHA books that included every registered name, so you could figure out which ones you couldn't use, and I think about what the phrase "horse people" used to mean.

It used to mean people who could judge a horse and his abilities based on a grainy black and white photo. It used to mean people who drove halfway across the country to look at a horse before they bought him, or bred a mare to him. They used to travel in cars with bumper hitches, open-top trailers and trucks with stock racks.

There was no air conditioning. You couldn't Google horse lodging along your route.

I think about the people who built this industry and the horses they chose—and the horses they didn't. They decided they didn't want the rank ones. They didn't need the roman noses and the cow hocks, the poor dispositions or the ones who had more brawn than brains.

Those horse people made decisions based on their own experiences, their neighbors' opinions and understanding what a horse was meant to do, and how it needed to be built to do it.

There are a lot of "horse people" today who could sit down with those guys who bred Doc Bar and King and Joe Hancock, Driftwood and Leo, Hard Twist and Music Mount, and talk about horses. They could say exactly what they like and don't like about any given horse, without knowing their pedigree, lifetime earnings or number of points they've accumulated.

And there are a lot of "horse people" who couldn't.

But today, we do have these tools. We can isolate genetic flaws and breed beyond them, without sacrificing an entire genetic line. We can track earnings and figure out which bloodlines seem to be the most successful at any given event. We can type in a foal's name and immediately know if it's available for registration or not. We don't have to drive halfway across the country to confidently buy a horse.

But the stories I'm always excited to tell are the ones of the true horse people—the ones who have made it their life's work to breed the best horses they can, to make one of the most fascinating, majestic animals on the planet even better, using whatever tools they have access to, but more than anything, knowing good horses.

That's the true definition of "horse people."

The Good Ones: Taz

Cliff Crago's once-in-a-lifetime horse, in a lifetime of horses

BY MARIA TIBBETTS

Taz was a reject. She “flunked out” of a Texas cutting program. But she found her feet—and purpose—in South Dakota, with Cliff Crago.

Cliff ranches with his wife, Chris, and son and daughter-in-law, Clay and Chas, near Belle Fourche. Cliff picked up Boon Taz Dually, a blaze-faced sorrel mare, as a 2-year-old, from Shannon Hall’s program.

“I knew if Shannon had started her she’d be started right,” Cliff said. “She didn’t have very many rides on her, and she wasn’t one I figured on keeping. I just figured she’d be fun to ride and would have a lot of ability and we’d see where it went from there. It went a different way than I thought it would.”

There were a lot of great horses in Cliff’s more than 70 years. The first one he remembers is a paint horse his family bred. Crago bought the ranch near Belle Fourche in 1955, and their first registered Quarter Horse in 1957. “I was horseback all my life,” Cliff says.

Cliff and his brother grew up riding horses for the neighbors and family. Cliff married Chris Hoffman, from the Wall area, who also grew up horseback. They raised horses on the family ranch near Belle Fourche, running about 50 head of broodmares and stallions that went back to The Ole Man, Bar Money and Azure Te.

They had four kids, and in 1984 they sold most of the horses and moved to Texas, where Cliff and Chris put on natural horsemanship schools, modeled after Ray Hunt and Kevin Stallings. They traveled all over Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Florida, with Cliff presenting the colt-starting portion of the clinics, and Chris focusing on the horsemanship.

“We made a lot of good contacts and rode a lot of good horses over the years down there,” Cliff said.

Jodie Baxendale called Cliff Crago one day and said she needed to do a winter photo shoot, and it had to have snow. The day she picked was cold and snowy, but Cliff and Chris and Taz were game—Cliff even traded the Scotch cap he wore for practical purposes for his cowboy hat, for the sake of aesthetics. “I was about froze down by the time we were done,” he said. But the photos Jodie took that day captured some pretty special memories of his special horse, that he lost a few years later.

Crago have
52 years.

In 1994 Cliff, Chris and their youngest son, Clay, moved back to South Dakota, where they worked on the ranch until they were able to buy out part of it and lease some of it in 2000. Since then they've been running cattle together, and have been building their broodmare band back up—though they aren't aspiring to the numbers they had in the 1980s.

“Now we're back up to eight to 10 mares,” Cliff said. “I don't know what a guy does that for. They eat a lot. It's just something we enjoy.” They don't have any stallions right now, though Cliff is open to the idea of raising one, if the right one comes along. This spring they'll have a colt by Stevie Rey Von, out of a daughter of Docs Hickory. They'll also have colts by Fiestas Gotta Gun, Epic Leader and a lot of Metallic Cat influence.

They sometimes sell a few horses through the Black Hills Stock Show horse sale, but now primarily sell via private treaty.

The mares they have now are part run and part cow-bred. “We like good using horses that are versatile,” Chris said.

“I like the speed and the common sense,” the combination produces, Cliff said.

Taz had it all, according to Cliff, but Chris said what made the mare really outstanding—the once-in-a-lifetime kind of horse, in a lifetime full of horses—was the connection she had with Cliff.

The Good Ones: Taz

“She was born to read a cow, but she read Cliff,” Chris said.

“She was born to read a cow, but she read Cliff,” Chris said. “That’s what made her feel easy. She just knew what he wanted and what he asked and it just flowed so beautifully. She made a hard, tough job look effortless. She knew where to put her feet, she was handy and didn’t take a lot of effort from the rider’s part. She never got excited, ever. That might be part of what made her good—you couldn’t excite her.”

Chris didn’t like riding her as much—she said she felt lazy. But that may have been efficiency of movement and understanding her job and not wasting any effort, rather than not wanting to expend it.

“She was just where she needed to be, no matter what you were doing,” Cliff said. “She was just one of those that, wherever you headed, whatever you wanted to do, she was right there with you.”

Cliff and Taz were a well-known pair in the neighborhood branding circle. “In the alley or the sorting pen she was pretty wicked,” Chris said. “She was probably the horse with the most cow-smarts we’ve ever had around. She could make anybody look good.”

Cliff and Chris’s grandkids liked to ride her. “The grandkids always wanted to sort on her. They roped calves on her. They used her whenever I wasn’t, I guess,” Cliff said. But she was always Cliff’s first choice. “I don’t know what made her special, but whatever I asked of her, she’d do it and she’d do it pretty good, and if we didn’t do good it wasn’t her fault.”

No matter what the job was, Taz was in the right place, and knew how to do it right, Cliff said.

Cliff and Taz led the Longhorn herd into Belle Fourche for the kickoff of the Black Hills Roundup.

Cliff bought two geldings at the same time as Taz. One went on to be a college calf roping horse, one became a pickup horse.

“For some reason I got in the habit of riding mares,” Cliff said. “Mares were cheaper to buy at that point, and you could buy some cheap ones because people didn’t want them as much as geldings. I just had good mares around I was riding. She was my pick.”

As much as he loved riding Taz, Cliff was looking forward to adding her to the broodmare band and seeing how her genes showed up in future generations. But one evening in 2020 they noticed she was a little “off.” The next morning they realized it was more serious than they thought, and they took her to the vet. A colic diagnosis will put a rock in the pit of the stomach of the most seasoned horseman, especially when it’s your once-in-a-lifetime horse on the trailer. The vet couldn’t get the colic straightened out, and they lost her. “She was just right in the prime of her life,” Cliff said. “Talking about her again makes me realize how much I miss her.”

In the two years since, there hasn’t been another horse to step into the role of Cliff’s go-to. Cliff is getting a little more selective about the horses he rides. Right now he’s riding an outside mare for someone in Texas who wants a team-penning horse. He’s got a cutting-bred gelding that flunked out of a cutting program after about a year, but it’s not the same.

“It’s fun to work with the horses, to try and make them as good as you can make them. The better you make them, the better they make you,” Cliff said. “Horses have always been part of our life. It’s just a way of life for us.”

Chris and Cliff’s kids are grown, and even most of their grandkids are in high school or college. But the lifetime of knowledge they’ve built up is still getting passed on. When Clay’s kids were growing up they built an indoor arena, set up some bucking chutes and had a pen of broncs. The broncs are gone now, but Cliff and Chris still work with the neighbor kids on cutting and barrel racing. Last year one of the neighbor kids traded some summer labor for the use of Cragos’ cutting horse, that had carried Cooper, their grandson, to a 12th place finish at the National High School Finals Rodeo. The same horse also took their older grandson, Chet, to the finals three times, and their granddaughter, Kylee, rode him for two years.

“It’s fun to help those kids,” Cliff said. “I’m not an expert by no means at all, but I enjoy helping them and I think I do a good job for them—I hope I do, anyway. We always look forward to schooling them a little.” ♣

Bebo Quarter Horses

Winning saddles and world titles

BY RUTH NICOLAUS

aybe Bruce Bebo's lifelong obsession began when his mother, Carol Bebo, while pregnant with him, was dumped off a horse.

Or maybe it's in his blood.

Bebo Quarter Horses has been the lifetime work of Bruce Bebo and his parents, Spud and Carol.

For more than a half-century, Bruce's parents, and then Bruce, have raised quality AQHA horses for a variety of disciplines.

Spud and Carol, co-owners of the Redfield Sale Barn, bred and raised horses. Their kids, including Bruce, showed them.

By the age of thirteen, Bruce was training customer horses, and he's never quit.

From cutting to reining to halter and western pleasure, Bebo horses have been bred and raised for it, and have done it all.

One of the first stallions Bruce started with was Tuff Order. A 1979 stallion, the Bebos, including Bruce and his parents, showed him, making him an AQHA champion in the halter, western pleasure and roping events. Bob Johnson trained him for roping, and he and Bruce would go to shows, where Bruce did the western pleasure and halter with Tuff Order while Bob did the roping.

Another stallion Bruce recalls is Mr April Conclusion. Purchased at the World Show in Oklahoma City in the 1990s, he was bred to a Howard Pitzer mare, Jeanie Red Baron. Mr April Conclusion sired one colt then got sick and died.

TOP LEFT: Cruising On Diesel, a buckskin gelding that Bruce broke and showed as a late 2-year-old and 3-year-old. His sire was Epic Icon, a Bebo stallion, and his dam was PR Corona Gold. Cruising On Diesel went on to win two saddles for his new owner. PHOTO COURTESY BEBO QUARTER HORSES.

But that colt, Cluenation, born in 1994, “was gorgeous and fancy,” Bruce said, and went on to win the Center of the Nation Futurity in Rapid City, the South Dakota Futurity. The horse finished as reserve world champion yearling stallion at the World Show, with 21 in his class.

Bebo also remembers another stallion that was influential in Bebo Quarter Horses.

Plain Scotch Bar was a 1991 stallion owned by Thomson Quarter Horses. Bruce campaigned him, with the horse winning superior western pleasure. Standing at the Bebo place, they bred to him, one year breeding as many as 50 mares.

Bruce started him; in six weeks he took him to the Black Hills Summer Circuit in Rapid City and won the circuit championship in the 2-year-old snaffle bit and western pleasure. That same year, the stallion accumulated 55 points to finish with a superior in western pleasure.

Aces Are Hot is one of Bebo Quarter Horses’ current stallions. The 16-hand black is the third generation raised on the place. An all-around performance horse, Bruce said the 6-year-old is bred for western, western pleasure, horsemanship, trail, “all the all-around things you’d do with a horse.”

Mares that will foal this year include Shez Hot For Chocolate and Missys Smokin Gun.

Shez Hot For Chocolate is bred to VS Code Blue, one of the top five pleasure and all-around horses in the AQHA show world, Bruce said. This isn’t the first time they’ve bred the pair; about five years ago, their foal went on to be a five-time world champion, VS Goodall And Blue.

Missys Smokin Gun, who is Playgun and Dual Peppy bred, is bred to Metallics MVP, a red roan stallion whose lifetime earnings are nearly $300,000.

At one time, Bruce bred between 60 and 70 mares a year, between their own and customers' horses. "We'd always have mares from a five-state region come to our place," he said. At his peak, he was raising 20 to 25 foals and training 10 each year. They've slowed down a bit. This spring, they'll have four foals.

Last year, Bebo Quarter Horses, Bruce, Stacey, and Cooper, who was half-owner of the horse, had the top selling horse at the 2022 Black Hills Stock Show.

Im A Nasty Habit, a 2020 cutting-bred black stallion whose sire is Hashtag and dam is PG Olenas Hickory, sold for $62,000. Nasty, who was nominated to the Ft. Worth Sweepstakes Futurity, is homozygous black and 5-panel negative. Bebos bought him in Texas as an investment for resale. Hashtag's offspring have been high sellers at the Ft. Worth futurity cutting sale, and the sire has won $500,000 in the NCHA.

It had been Bruce's goal to have the top selling horse at the BHSS.

"I told my wife and son I wanted to leave the Stock Show being one of the top sale horses of the sale, and that's what we projected last year. We thought the black horse would do that."

Bruce knows what the clientele at the BHSS want: horses with cow-sense. "I could take a world champion halter horse to the stock show, and I might as well stay home. That's not what they're wanting. People there are looking for cow horses. That's what's most popular there."

Bebo Quarter Horses has taken two or three horses each year to the Stock Show. "The Black Hills Stock Show has done an awesome job promoting the horses they have. We've had very good luck there. They do an awesome job."

When he and Stacey's kids—Cooper, Jacklyn, Cheyenne and Stuart—were young, they spent several days each year at the BHSS. The kids loved it, Bruce said. "They have kids now, and they still talk about how much fun they had."

The horse market is high now, but expenses are up, too, Bruce points out, with so many things that go into having a horse: a pickup and trailer, hay, feed, insurance, and more. "Nothing's free," he said. "The horse market is up, and even grade horses are bringing a lot."

If the horse is "trained and honest, and people can ride him, and he's sound and sane, he'll bring good money."

But the constant is being truthful, Bruce believes. "Honesty is the way to go. If you want a repeat customer, you have to be that way. In any business, honesty will take care of you."

The couple has raised horses for different disciplines throughout their equine career, but focus more on all-around horses now.

"You can't buy a horse for every event," he said. "You have to have a horse that does it all."

They've sold horses all over the 50 states, and people have had success with them.

"People show them, and win saddles and world champion titles, and that means a lot to me, that we're producing a horse they can go and win on." 🐾

A Smooth Guy's semen is available only for ICSI.

ICSI gives horse owners another option to carry on valuable genetics

BY MARIA TIBBETTS

*W*hen A Smooth Guy broke his leg and had to be euthanized, Myers Performance Horses didn't have much of his semen stored.

But with modern technology, the sire of offspring that have earned more than $2 million could sire as many as 200 more foals.

The process is called intracytoplasmic sperm injection (ICSI) and it has a variety of applications, said Dr. Jennifer Hatzel, assistant professor in the department of clinical sciences at Colorado State University.

The process is expensive and not guaranteed to be successful, but in cases where other reproductive assistance techniques aren't possible, ICSI gives mare owners and stallion owners an option to carry on genetics that otherwise may be limited.

In the case of A Smooth Guy, Bill Myers sent the stallion's testicles, postmortem, to Texas,

A Smooth Guy broke his leg and had to be euthanized, so Myers were unable to collect as much semen as they would have liked. Gamete rescue and ICSI allowed them to still perpetuate his genetics. PHOTOS COURTESY OF MYERS PERFORMANCE HORSES.

where they were able to retrieve semen for future breedings. That process is called gamete rescue, and extends the fertility of stallions beyond their own lifespan, or even their collected semen.

ICSI uses oocytes (unfertilized eggs) from a mare, and injects a single sperm into a single egg. The fertilized oocyte is placed in an incubator for several days, then put into a recipient mare or the donor mare, or frozen for later use.

One of the major benefits, as Myers have seen, is that it uses a single sperm. Unlike artificial insemination (AI), which uses thousands of sperm in each straw, and takes place inside the mare, ICSI can make limited sperm resources last a lot longer.

Similarly, the process can be used to harvest oocytes from mares that are unable to be bred conventionally, or even flushed for embryo transfer. It can also be used to harvest eggs from mares post-mortem, to carry on genes that way, Hatzel said. The unfertilized eggs can't be frozen and stored, but fertilized eggs can, so ICSI can provide an option for saving those eggs, though mating decisions have to be made quickly in that scenario.

"I would say it started out being a solution that was sought after for mares that were suffering from infertility. Older mares, mares that had reproductive problems, could no longer carry a foal to term, and just as importantly, could no longer donate an embryo," Hatzel said. "That's where we've really found that ICSI comes in handy."

While it offers that solution for mares, the horse industry has driven it more from the stallion side.

Frenchmans Guy, one of the leading barrel racing sires, is still producing offspring, thanks to modern technology, like ICSI. PHOTOS COURTESY OF MYERS PERFORMANCE HORSES.

“People are choosing to use this procedure in young, healthy mares that could feasibly have healthy offspring, but because they’ve chosen a stallion that is either deceased or has a limited amount of frozen sperm available, this is the viable option,” Hatzel said.

Normally one straw is used for AI, but the same straw can be cut 10 to 15 times for ICSI use.

Though the cost is limiting, those who are making high-end matings are using it even when circumstances don’t dictate the necessity, Hatzel said. One session of ovum pick up (OPU) and ICSI could produce two to three embryos, instead of the usual one for embryo transfer.

But there are drawbacks, she said. “I think it works really well in some situations. I don’t know that it should be the go-to for every mare and every situation. It’s invasive—it uses a needle to go directly into the abdomen, so there’s an increased amount of risk compared to embryo flushing. It’s not a benign procedure to take lightly.”

Myers, who has used it on some of his own mares, in addition to providing semen to outside mares for ICSI, said the cost is generally around $8,500 to $10,000 for the procedure, without the cost of the semen. A Smooth Guy’s semen for ICSI is listed at $3,500. His sire, Frenchmans Guy, has limited semen available as well, and Myers offers it only for ICSI, at $6,500 per breeding. “The best case scenario is you get multiple babies out of one ICSI session,” Myers said. “If you get multiple pregnancies, then that cheapens your overall deal. But they don’t all work. Sometimes you pay quite a bit and don’t get anything. Then you’ve got to put that on the cost of your next one.”

But for the right mare and the right stallion in the right situation, there’s a high reward for the high risk. It can be used to extend the breeding season, in addition to addressing fertility issues in both mares and stallions.

“Anytime you start getting that specific and so scientifically technical, everything has to line up,” Myers said. “The stars gotta line up. It’s not an easy process when you start doing that kind of stuff.”

Krogman

Quarter Horses

BY RUTH NICOLAUS

If you're into cutting, reining, reined cow horses or barrel horses, Krogman Quarter Horse is your one-stop shop.

For the past 70 years, they have been raising Quarter Horses near White River, S.D.

Siblings Steve Krogman, Lorena Hight, and Neil Krogman have partnered with the horses since their dad, Louie Krogman, passed away in 1991.

Louie was the start of the horse business.

Born in 1902, he grew up around ranch and draft horses, but wanted Quarter Horses. With a mental picture of the perfect horse in his head, he went to the 1950 National Western Stock Show in Denver and saw what he considered the perfect horse: an AQHA yearling stallion named Tom B Glover, the Grand Champion at halter. Louie bought him for $1,000 (about $12,000 today).

His older sister told him he was crazy, son Steve recounted. “She said he’s the craziest person in the world to buy that horse. He’d never make it in this world if he spent money on crazy things like that.”

But he wasn’t crazy; he knew what he wanted.

For a time, he wanted race horses. He bred Tom B Glover to mares he owned, then bought an own son of Three Bars and crossed the Glover mares with Three Bars’ son.

Louie was in the race horse business from 1955 to the early 1970s, and during that tenure, he set a Kansas state record at the 400-yard distance for Quarter Horse racing, which held for many years.

Another racing stallion contributed to the Krogman bloodlines.

While at a race track in Colorado, Louie saw Leo 3, who had, unbeknownst to his owner, been entered into a claim race by his trainer. Leo 3 hadn't won much, so the trainer thought he'd put him in a cheap claim race, and the horse might win it.

After a phone call from Louie's trainer, telling him about the horse, Louie borrowed the cash from neighbors to buy the horse, flew to Colorado, and claimed him.

"The owner was terribly, terribly mad," Steve said. He sued Louie, but Louie won. Leo 3 "did a lot of good for us," Steve said. "He had super, super colts that were good looking and could really cow. Ranchers liked them."

By the late 1970s, Louie quit the race bloodlines and raised ranch horses with foundation bloodlines: Leo, Three Bars, and King.

Then he bought Paprika Pine from a good friend, Sonny Thomason. A grandson of Poco Pine, Paprika Pine crossed well on the Leo 3 bloodlines.

For a while, Louie was known for his roans. He had a lot of red roans, selling them at the annual sale. When several people asked for blue roans, Louie bought a blue roan stud.

Krogmans “were pretty much known for raising roan-colored horses that would really watch a cow and work good in the rodeo arena, the cow pen, and for ranchers,” Steve said.

The three siblings work together, but each handles a different discipline: Steve oversees cutting horses, Lorena’s interest is the reining, and Neil and his daughters handle the barrel horses.

For the cutting and reined cow horse, Cant Kick This Cat is their senior stallion. The 14-year-old sorrel’s sire is High Brow Cat, the number one producing cutting sire ever. High Brow Cat has another son, Metallic Cat, who will probably surpass his sire in cutting earnings; the Krogmans own Metallic Avator, a son of Metallic Cat.

Cant Kick This Cat not only threw good cutting babies, he changed how the Krogmans bred their horses. When they purchased him, they didn’t realize he had an injured stifle; they just knew he couldn’t cut. Because of the injured stifle, he isn’t able to cover live mares. The Krogmans switched from pasture breeding to AI.

“It turned out that it was lucky that he was hurt,” Steve said. Because of AI, they are able to breed 60 or more mares a year to him, instead of the 20 or 30 they’d have done through pasture breeding.

The stallion Smart Little Romeo was an influential part of their cutting bloodlines. He died at four years of age, but they kept a lot of broodmares out of him that worked very well on Cant Kick This Cat.

Lorena Hight’s part of the program is the reining and reined cow horses.

A horse lover since she was a little girl, she rodeoed through high school, training her own horses for Little Britches, 4-H, high school and SDRA competition.

The first influential reining horse stud she had was Heza Valentine Pine, a palomino, "I fell in love with and had to buy," she laughed.

She followed him up with Whiz My Nu Chex, whose sire is Topsail Whiz, the NRHA's only ten-million-dollar winning sire, another palomino. Her sons use him around the ranch. "They have ridden him, dragged calves on him, rounded up cattle on him, and used him in some pretty rough areas," Lorena said. "They said they've never rode anything so sure-footed who can go out and get a cow."

Whiz My Nu Chex's oldest offspring are 5-year-olds. "People are really liking them," Lorena said.

In her reining horses, Lorena likes an athletic horse with cow sense and "horses that are pretty to look at and fun to watch move. They travel out classy and will watch a cow. They're not just reining but the rope horse type, too."

Neil and his daughters, Alyssa Hicks, Mariah Hossle and Savannah Krogman, who all competed in Little Britches, junior high and high school rodeo, focus on the barrel racing part of Krogman Quarter Horses.

Two stallions are their primary horses right now. VF Chase This, a grandson of Frenchmans Guy, is 8 years old and "has been doing well for us," Alyssa said. "His offspring are of riding age and are intelligent. We're excited to see what they have to offer under saddle."

The second stallion is Fame And Champagne, a 2016 sorrel grandson of Dash Ta Fame and an own son of Woodbridge.

Fame And Champagne “is just what we’re looking for,” she said. “Sensible and willing, and he throws those traits to his colts.” Alyssa and her husband Josh have used him for ranch work and he’s had training for the barrels and roping.

Alyssa looks for foals that are “easy to get along with, trainable, and I like them to have a little bit of personality. I like them to be pretty movers, nice and smooth, but have that quickness to them as well, with good feet.”

Fame And Champagne is giving his offspring a “nice pretty head and nice hip,” she said. “They have a little size to them. He throws a nice heavy bone on them.”

Steve said Krogman Quarter Horse clientele is ranch people looking for horses to ranch on, horses for youth equine activities, and the weekend hobbyists who might compete in team pennings or other horse events.

But no matter the discipline, the Krogmans have a horse for it. With the three branches of the family each doing its own event, “we stay up to date in the industry,” Alyssa said.

“Whether you’re looking for cutters, reiners or barrel racing horses,” Steve said, “or a cross of those three, we have a lot of mares that are cow bred mares, crossing them on our running studs so you have that cow-run cross that people are looking for.”

Louie might be surprised at how the horse world has changed, but he would be pleased the business is still going strong and the love for horses continues in the next generation of Krogmans.

The 2023 Krogman Quarter Horse sale will be held Sunday, September 3, 2023. For more information, visit the website at KQuarterHorse.com. 🐾

BY LINDSAY HUMPHREY

Joey Williams is making her mark on the Breakaway world with the help of her 11-year-old bay mare Baybe Bullet.

Joey (Painter) Williams's passion for rodeo and ranching runs in her blood. "Rodeo has been a part of my family forever," Williams said, "From the age we could ride a stick horse and swing a rope we were entering." Growing up on the Painter ranch in Harding County, South Dakota there were always horses to ride and cattle to work. The Painter family has run cattle on Harding County grasslands since 1895. Williams's father also raised and trained horses and helped build the college rodeo program at Black Hills State University, where Williams and her siblings all competed collegiately. Both Williams and her sister Jessica were national intercollegiate rodeo champions in breakaway and Williams was named the Great Plains Region All-Around Cowgirl in 2012.

Williams and Baybe made their first trip to the Wrangler NFR in December of 2021. The duo came into the finals sitting 14th in the world standings and ended it earning 5th in the average and 10th in the world. “I went in with zero expectations, I was kind of an underdog qualifying in at the last couple of rodeos, so I didn’t put pressure on myself and just went in to have fun.” Williams went home with three round wins and the Finals' fast time of 1.7 seconds in round four. "It really is just an indescribable feeling," says Williams, "It's one thing to qualify, but to walk away feeling like you had a good finals is pretty special."

With the support and encouragement of her family this year, Williams went cross-country and once again earned herself a ticket to Las Vegas. The duo locked in their spot this year sitting 8th in the world standings. In a fast-paced two days, Williams won round seven, and finished sixth in the average and seventh in the world.

But one of the biggest honors was awarded onstage before the rodeo even started—Baybe was recognized as the Nutrena Breakaway Horse of the Year by the AQHA. The horses are nominated by the 25 ranked breakaway ropers.

"We're very, very honored," Williams said. "When you raise horses, like we do, it's one of the most prestigious things you could be awarded. She's the real MVP"

Baybe makes it easy for Joey to do her job. "One of her most important qualities is that she's rock solid in the corner until I drop my hand and she breaks really flat which makes it easy for me to get my first swing up." Williams says that it's one thing to believe your horse is special but it's a gratifying knowing others recognize it as well. "I'm very blessed to be the one to haul her down the road," Williams said.

Baybe was born, raised and trained as part of Joey's husband Taylor Williams's family's breeding program. Baybe was one of the last foals sired by his family's late stud, Frenchmans Bullet, a son of Frenchmans Guy and Pac A Dee. Baybe's dam is Beanie Baybe Chic, who goes back to Chicks Beduino. Taylor broke and started Baybe as a ranch and heel horse. She soon became Taylor's main heel horse and the pair won the Montana Circuit Finals average three times in 2019, 2020 and 2021. Until this past year the couple shared Baybe, since neither was hitting the rodeo circuit hard at the time, but now she is primarily just Joey's mount.

The Horse of the Year award just affirms what Williams' already knew—that Baybe is something special. She already has three foals on the ground, and one on the way. Her 3-year-old is by Smoke N Sunrise, her 2-year-old is by Smoke N Sparks and the yearling is by Shawne Bug Leo. They were so impressed with the foal by Smoke N Sunrise that they bred her again to him, for the 2023 foal. Joey says they intend to keep flushing embryos, so Baybe can stay on the road and keep producing foals.

Baybe's running bloodlines are somewhat nontraditional for a breakaway horse, but Williams believes the extra speed gives her an edge, especially in pens with longer scores, "She closes the gap fast and shuts it down at the right time," said Williams. To stay sharp between competitions Williams tries to run a couple of calves each week and occasionally takes her out to work cattle to get her out of the arena.

On top of rodeo, Williams balances ranching and raising her three kids Shay (1), Carson (4) and Landon (6) with her husband, Taylor. Williams and her husband run a cow-calf herd of Angus cattle and continue to raise and train horses together on their ranch in Broadus, Montana. “I’m constantly working to maintain that fine line of balance between doing what I need to stay competitive as a roper while trying to be the best mother and wife I can be and still help out on the ranch,” she explained, “I just take it day by day.” Williams loves how the ranching and rodeo lifestyle brings her family together and feels blessed to share her knowledge and passion with the next generation. “I really love it when the whole family’s out in the arena practicing together,” Williams says, “The kids are riding their horses and my husband and I roping.” Above all, Williams says that without the support of her family, none of it would be possible. “I want to say thank you to everybody—friends, family, sponsors, everyone in my corner that’s helped me this year.” 🐾

Not just a rope horse

SELLERS QUARTER HORSES
FOCUS ON FILLING A NICHE

BY MARIA TIBBETTS

Ryan Sellers has stood on the red carpet at the NRCHA Snaffle Bit Futurity.

But he says one of the high points of raising good horses is the text saying a buyer had pulled four checks at the local jackpot on a horse he'd bought from Sellers six weeks earlier.

"It's nice to see people having success at all different levels with the horses we've raised," Sellers said.

The latest accomplishment was a 10th place showing at the National Reined Cow Horse Association Futurity in Fort Worth, where NU One Time Blues, a 3-year-old red roan stallion Sellers raised and owns with Jack Bogart, took home a $20,000 check for beating 290 other horses.

But Sellers wasn't trying to raise a reined cow horse. He was trying to raise rope horses.

"Our goal has always been to fill the rope horse niche," Sellers says. "Most people just rope off the horses that cull out from something else. We wanted to raise them specifically to be rope horses. That's what we tailored our program to be. We ventured off into the cow horse world and got some luck there with a horse that's supposed to be a rope horse."

But their focus is still on the rope horses.

While the performance horse industry has their favorite stallions, it's the mare side that Sellers emphasizes.

"The biggest thing is the mare side, if the family has produced not just once, but multiple times, we're interested," Sellers says. "I'm flexible on the sires they're out of. Everybody likes the modern day stuff because that's what everybody knows, but there's still people who don't care if they have a son of whoever."

Sellers has done the research to find the genetics that are carried through the strength of the mares, and crosses those on the sires he think will be complementary.

"Conformation is the biggest thing we look for on the mare side," Sellers said. "Ability is up there, disposition is huge for us too. It's always fun to win when you've got a professional riding them, but those are very few in numbers, so we need horses that everybody can get along with, so disposition is a big thing."

Tommy Girl is an example of the kind of horse they like. The 10-year-old brown mare was a finalist at the 2016 AQHA World Show in junior heeling and qualified for the 2017 and 2018 AQHA World Show in junior heeling and junior tie-down roping. She won high point honor roll open division for all ages in the heeling points.

She's also been to Nebraska high school rodeos with Sellers' sons aboard.

Mr Baron Jules, a 2004 buckskin stallion, has also been to the big show, earning 497 AQHA points in heading and heeling. In Georgia to the National Junior High Finals Rodeo last year, a Mr Baron Jules son carried Steele Smith to a team roping championship. Sellers' son, Trey, also rides him in high school rodeos.

"It's fun to get out there and see the kids perform and have success on good horses," Sellers says.

At the Sellers place, south of North Platte, Nebraska, the grand tour includes the stallion barn, the vet's office, where the on-site vet does all the microscopic work for the stallion collection and embryo transfer operation, the pens for recip mares, pens for broodmares and pens for babies up for sale. That one's nearly empty.

"Most of our horses are sold as babies, right off the mares," Sellers says. "People buy them in the summer and pick them up at weaning, and most buy off pictures and videos—a lot are people we've never met. There's one lady in Idaho who has bought three or four babies from us every year for six or seven years, and we've never met her. A lot of people are that way."

The special horses, like NU One Time Blues, typically go to Matt Koch, who starts them. In the case of that red roan stallion, Koch saw some potential for him beyond the roping arena, so took him to the cowhorse pen.

For the rope horses, once Koch puts a foundation on them, Sellers sends them to Brad Lund or JD Yates to add the roping training and show them.

But at the Sellers Ranch, Ryan and Candi focus on a breeding program that is always moving forward, producing the best rope horses they can. And along the way, their three sons, Trey (16), Cort (15) and Graem (2) will have some of the best horses in the business to learn on.

That has required making some changes to their program. They started embryo transfer seven or eight years ago, and were hiring it done, having to transport mares to wherever they could find someone that could harvest embryos, and paying for board. So Sellers decided to turn the barn's tack room into a vet room, and hire a vet to handle all their embryo transfers on-site. They've established a reputation in the industry and now people fly in embryos to have Sellers put in his recip mares. "That's worked really well for us," Sellers said.

"The ET lets us sample a lot more things," Sellers says. "For half a dozen of our own mares we get to sample our studs. We sample our outcross studs quicker, and see if it works or if it doesn't. The horses I liked as an individual ended up not working, and ended up proving my theory, that you need to worry more about the mother and less about the individual.”

The bloodlines Sellers counts on to have a consistent foundation to build on started with Sensation Cash, a son of NU Cash and Snip Gay Bar. A full sister to Sensation Cash won the NRCHA Snaffle Bit Futurity, another sister was fourth and the stallion himself was eighth, so Sellers could see the strength in the mares of the family. Sensation Cash also won AQHA Performance Champion, 307 AQHA points and one halter point, plus AQHA superiors in heading, heeling, and tie down roping.

Several of Sellers’ broodmares are by Sensation Cash, further affirming Sellers’ belief in that mare line.

One of the latest stallions Sellers is trying out is CR Tuff Super Cat, a 3-year-old sorrel by Woody Be Tuff and out of Sarahs Super Cat. He's currently in training with Brad Lund, but Sellers is looking forward to seeing how he contributes to the rope horse program himself, and as an outcross sire.

Other lines that Sellers has incorporated include Shining Spark, through his stallions, DT Shiner and BFR Igniting Sparks, who also brings Smart Little Lena genes. "We bought DT Shiner as a yearling because of his sister," Sellers said. "She was one of the better mares I'd ever seen. Another sister won the World twice, and his mother is a really, really good mare. His colts are turning out that way too."

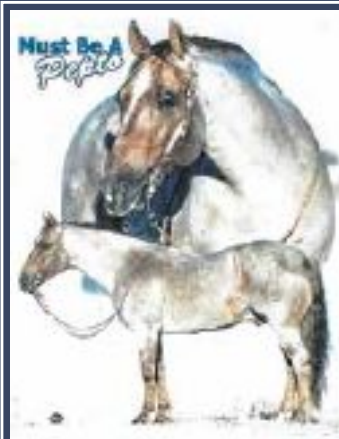

When Dean Tuftin, who bred DT Shiner, dispersed his Oregon rope horse operation, Sellers bought several mares and colts, which are all working out well for him.

Sellers also added some First Down Dash and Streakin La Jolla through Sixes Liason; and NU Cash and Peptoboonsmal through NU One Time Blues.

"We're always trying new ones, but we always end up going back to our main ones," Sellers said.

When the program has sent horses all across the United States, plus to Brazil, Panama and Venezuela, and is successful from the high school rodeo at Arthur, Nebraska, to the Black Hills Stock Show to the Oil Can Classic Futurity, Redbud Spectacular and AQHA World Show in Oklahoma, the Rope Horse Futurity Association World Finals in Fort Worth, the Snaffle Bit and the local jackpot, Sellers figures he's headed in the right direction. 🐾

Custom Saddle. Custom Experience.

Erin Taormino in a Martin Performance Saddle

Performance Saddle

Designed for cowhorse competitions, the Performance saddle is used and endorsed by NRHA and NRCHA Champion Todd Bergen along with many other cowhorse and reining professionals such as Erin Taormino, Luke Jones, Zane Davis. The saddle features a seat pocket that positions the rider, keeping the rider balanced and stable even during the toughest runs. It accommodates necessary movements by allowing the rider to sit up in the turnarounds or stay deep in the seat for rundowns and stops.

"When we were testing and riding the saddle, we had a goal of how we wanted the tree and seat to fit the rider and horse, and we accomplished just that. The seat puts you where you need to be, but with unsurpassed freedom. The fenders hang at the right angle to put my legs and feet in ideal placement."

Martin Roper

Custom Roper

The concept of the Custom Roper evolved from working with team roping professionals and adjusting the trees and design to fit their specific needs to compete at the highest level. The roper is built from the tree up, with over 100 possible combinations. The tree, horn, swell, ground seat, and cantle are all options to choose to create a saddle that fits individualized riding styles and maximizes performance and comfort.

Team roping professionals such as Erich Rogers and Paden Bray, compete in the Martin Custom Roper.

Breakaway Roper

It's the dawn of a new age in the women's sport of breakaway with opportunities and new horizons around every corner. 20X WPRA World Champion Roper, Jackie Crawford, has tested and rode a custom Breakaway roping saddle for years, understanding the advantage it gives herself and her horse. Much like the Custom Team Roper, the Breakaway saddle is made with customizable options from the tree up including the same elements; the tree, horn, swell, ground seat, and cantle. Arguably the fastest event in rodeo, often with the course being completed in under 2.5 seconds, the importance of position and getting the quicker shot in the breakaway can be the difference between placing or not placing. The Breakaway saddle is made with the intentions to giving the rider and horse the advantage needed in the fast event through quality and consistency.

Barrel Saddles

In the barrel saddle category, Martin Saddlery has worked tirelessly to complete a full line of barrel saddles fitting the exact needs of barrel racers and barrel horses alike. Six different saddles are available in the barrel racing category; the Crown C, Stingray, FX3, BTR, Guardian, and the Fearless. As with every other discipline's saddles, Martin Saddlery has teamed up with iconic industry professionals at the likes of Sherry Cervi, Lisa Lockhart, and Jolene Montgomery (to name a few) to test, improve, and perfect the saddles to best fit the modern barrel racer and barrel horse. The Martin team travels to many of the large events across the nation helping with saddle fits and test rides with the goal of helping barrel racers find their fit to help to help them be their most confident self and best perform with their equine partner in the arena.

THE PAUL AND ROBIN TIERNEY FAMILY HONORED IN THE RODEO LEGACY CATEGORY BY THE SDQHA

Paul Tierney was already eaten up by rodeo in his youth.

As a kid, growing up on the family farm and ranch near Broken Bow, Neb., he was always getting in trouble for roping the bucket calves, running around the pen to catch one, and once he got one roped, needing help to get the rope off. Usually his older brother Pat, helped him. He didn't ask his mom for help, "and I sure didn't ask dad," he said.

Paul and wife Robin Tierney are 2022 honorees in the rodeo legacy category for the South Dakota Quarter Horse Association.

The couple lives near Oral, S.D., with a proud legacy of rodeo and horses.

Tierney emulated his brother, Pat, who passed away in a tractor accident in his teens, and was always roping the sawhorse.

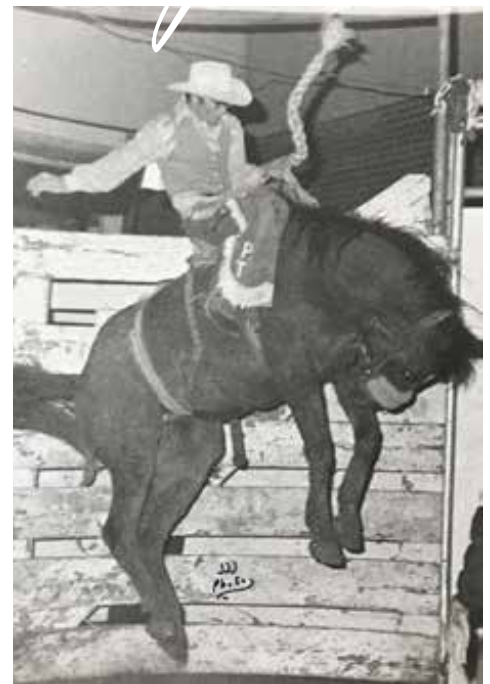

"I imitated that," he said. "I always had a rope in my hand when I was a little kid."

At Broken Bow High School, he competed in football, wrestling, track, and high school rodeo, winning the Nebraska High School calf roping, saddle bronc riding and all-around in 1970, the year he graduated.

On a full rodeo scholarship to National College of Business (now National American University), Paul excelled in collegiate rodeo, competing in all the events, like he had in high school.

He graduated with an ag business degree in 1975, then focused on rodeoing, purchasing his permit and filling much of it with money won in the saddle bronc riding.

Paul might have ridden roughstock longer than he did but a stolen bronc saddle ended his bronc riding career.

At the last college rodeo of the '75 season, hosted by his school, he was cleaning up under the bleachers on the hill when a car drove in and parked by the stripping chutes. That person stole his saddle, and partly because of that, Paul didn't ride many broncs after that.

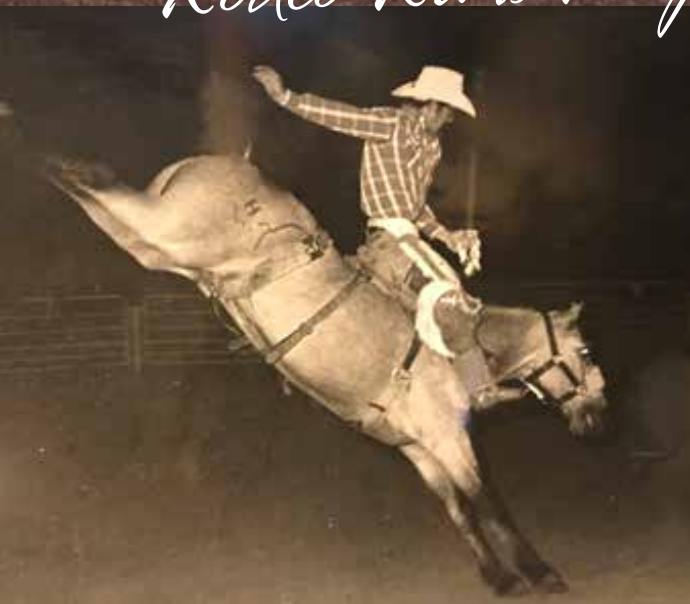

In 1977, his first year of PRCA competition, Paul qualified for the National Finals Rodeo in the calf roping, continuing his Finals run eight more times in the roping (1977-82, 84-86) and five times in the steer wrestling (1977, 79-81, 84).

He was a two-time PRCA world champion: in 1979 in the calf roping, and the next year, for the all-around.

He finished second in the world in the calf roping and fourth in the steer wrestling in 1980, to win the all-around. He was reserve all-around champ in 1977 and 1979 and reserve calf roping champ in 1977-78 and 1980.

After rupturing a disk in 1985, he had surgery two years later and never competed fulltime again.

He had also given himself a timeline.

"I always declared I'd give it ten years of my life, then move on," he said.

But Tierney continued to compete at Badlands Circuit rodeos, winning four all-around titles (1980, 83, 91 and 92), five calf roping titles (1977, 80, 83-84 and 91) and a steer wrestling title in 1993.

During his decade of fulltime rodeo, he estimates he competed at 150 rodeos a year.

He married Robin Bail in 1988; she was a rodeo contestant as well.

A youngster growing up in Harding County, S.D., rodeo "was just what you did," she said. As a teenager, she rode behind Connie Stinson Price, observing and soaking it all up as Connie trained barrel horses. "I was a silent student," Robin said.

In college at South Dakota State, she competed in the barrels, breakaway and goat tying and qualified for the College National Finals all three years she was on the team, in the mid-1980s.

In 1985, she won the title of Miss Rodeo South Dakota and that fall, after she gave up the crown, won the WPRA Badlands Circuit barrel racing and rookie titles, competing at the National Circuit Finals in Pocatello, Idaho.

The Tierney kids: Jess, Paul David, Amy, and Jordan, were told by their dad, "you will rodeo (in youth rodeos) and in college, because it will pay your education, and after that, you can choose," Robin remembers. "They did well in rodeo, and loved it." All four kids earned college rodeo scholarships.

Robin and Paul, with daughter Jordan, pose for an ad for Montana Silversmiths; the family has deep roots in rodeo.

After his fulltime competition ended, Paul and Robin trained performance horses, using a gray mare, with Happy Hancock and Leo Tag bloodlines, purchased from Clark Brown near North Platte, Neb. as a foundation mare.

Three horses are among the studs in their program: Frosted Cash, a son of Leo's Question, a Frosty Feature son purchased from Bob Jordan, and a son of Frenchmans Guy, out of a mare from Sherrick Granthum of Arizona, a daughter of Driftwood Ike and Sak Em San.

After having raised, trained and sold horses to the public, the Tierneys make sure their kids (and upcoming grandkids) have the horses they need.

"We make horses for our kids," Robin said. "They're all involved in rodeo in some way. It all starts here. We love that, and it keeps us involved (in rodeo). We not only love to see our kids succeed, but our horses, too."

A new stud has joined the Tierney herd. Driftin French Cash, an enrolled Riata Buckle stallion that bears all the bloodlines of the best of their program: Driftin from the Granthum line, French from Frenchmans Guy, and Cash from the Bob Jordan horse Frosted Cash. They raised the six-year-old and his first colt is showing as a four-year-old.

Among the many people who helped Paul along during his pro rodeo days, Clark Brown stands out in his mind.

Rodeo Runs Deep

Because he owed Brown, a roper and rancher from North Plate, money on a horse and couldn't pay it, Paul offered to work for him. For three months in the winter of 1971, "we roped and roped and roped," Paul remembers. "There's no telling how many calves we roped at his place, probably in the thousands." Each night, each of them would rope at least 25 calves, five days a week, with Paul on one of Brown's horses. Brown was an excellent roper, missing maybe one calf every two weeks, Paul estimates.

"Clark gave me a huge foundation," he said. "It was a very, very important relationship in my career, because there's no way I'd have roped that many calves at my house."

The Tierneys spend a few months each winter in Arizona, but it's not for vacation, laughed Robin.

"Most people go (to Arizona) to relax and rope a little bit," she said. "Paul thinks we're back on the rodeo trail and he goes to at least two ropings a day, seven days a week. He's a rope-aholic."

"A guy like me," Paul said, "we never retire, we just make a new horse or buy a new rope. Rodeo never gets out of your blood. It's in your DNA."

Paul is an inductee in the Broken Bow (Neb.) High School Athletic Hall of Fame, the Nebraska High School Sports Hall of Fame, the South Dakota Sports Hall of Fame, the National Cowboy Museum Hall of Fame, and the Pro Rodeo Hall of Fame.

His children have rodeo credentials of their own: Jess is a ten-time National Finals Steer Roping qualifier and is the rodeo coach at Western Oklahoma State College in Altus. Paul David is a five-time Badlands Circuit champion and a two-time Timed Event Champion. Amy Tierney Johnson is a college goat tying and a Northwest Ranch Cowboy Association mixed team roping champ, and Jordan is the 2019 Miss Rodeo South Dakota and the 2020-2021 Miss Rodeo America. 🐾

Sometimes, success comes because God places the right people and the right horses in one's path at the right time. At least, that's how Tim Schaack describes the success of his burgeoning performance horse program, which recently earned the South Dakota Quarter Horse Association Producer of the Year Award.

"Whiskey has basically changed our lives," says Tim Schaack. Everybody that has one of his babies wants another one, and that probably excites me more than anything." Their buckskin stallion, Whoze Your Daddy (Whiskey), is a big reason Schaack Family Performance Horses is being recognized.

When Tim Schaack and his wife, Paula, saw Whiskey for the first time at Frenchmans Quarter Horses in Hot Springs, South Dakota, they knew instantly that he was the stallion prospect they were looking for. Sired by Paddys Irish Whiskey and out of Frenchmans Violet by Frenchmans Guy, their future stallion would come from across the lot to greet them at the gate, even as a weanling. It was an easy enough decision to purchase him, but it was also a huge step to take financially. "I toiled quite a bit. Every time I thought about not buying him, I had a bellyache," Tim Schaack says. They returned to see the colt five or six times, sometimes taking friends for their opinion, and each time solidified their decision. Schaacks are very grateful to John and Lis (Loiseau) Hollman, who own Frenchmans Quarter Horses, for helping them purchase him. "They went above and beyond to make it happen for us. We'd have never been able to own that horse if it wasn't for those people. They'll always be special to us for that reason," Tim says.

When Whoze Your Daddy was a 2-year-old, they showcased him on Stallion Row at the Black Hills Stock Show and they have had a steady stream of outside mares ever since. Now 10 years old, Whiskey breeds 15-20 of Schaack's mares and 25-40 outside mares each year, standing at Colorado State University.

For Schaack, Whiskey is the ideal sire: good-minded, athletic, and he "stamps" every one of his babies. Their broodmares vary in size, but Schaack says that when he gathers the mares and their babies at weaning time, it is difficult to know which foal is out of which mare. The "true trait" of Whiskey's parentage is that he marks each of his babies with his pretty head, big hips, large girth, and kind eyes. Many clients breed to the stud because of his looks, but Schaack says he is also an incredible athlete.

Schaack has spent a lifetime training horses, being mentored by Ray Hunt and Buck Brannaman. Tim said there were many colts he rode where he recognized greatness underneath, but had to ride through some "bad stuff" to get to it. Now, he raises colts that want to get along from day one, he says, making the training process much simpler.

Growing up in Henry, South Dakota, Schaack and his dad raised a few colts. From the age of 11, Schaack started colts and trained horses and so found his calling. Marrying Carrie in 1989 and welcoming their sons Tel and Treg shortly after, Schaack tried various ways of balancing his passion for training horses with supporting his young family. First, by selling insurance, then seeking various barns to lease around South Dakota. Finally, he had the opportunity to merge stability and colt training when he was offered a colt riding job at the historic Haythorn Ranch in 2001. Their third son, Tres was born in 2002.

Tragically, Carrie was killed in a car accident the following year. Tim continued training, showing for Haythorns, and raising his sons until making the decision to buy his own place in 2007. Edgemont, South Dakota would become the home in which Schaack could fulfill his lifelong dreams of running cattle and raising his own quality Quarter Horses.

Not long after moving back to South Dakota, Tim met Paula. She and her two kids, Whitney and Josh, joined the Schaacks. According to Tim, Paula is the “glue” that holds everything together. From housework to moving cows to doing paperwork, “she does more than probably most women should have to do,” he says.

Their four sons each have unique equine interests: Josh ranches in Edgemont with his family; Tel trains futurity rope horses, specializing in heeling; Treg aspires to make the National Finals Rodeo in tie-down roping; and Tres trains futurity barrel horses. This variety of disciplines in the family is the inspiration for creating the ultimate all-around offspring by Whoze Your Daddy. Tim likes producing colts that have a lot of cow, speed, agility, and willingness. So far, they are having great success, with his babies showing well in ranch horse versatility, barrel racing, roping, and ranching.

When Schaacks first began marketing Whiskey's colts and fillies, they didn't sell anything they hadn't ridden. "We've ridden enough of them now that I know they're all going to be pretty darn good-minded," he says. They are beginning to sell weanlings and yearlings more often. Whoze Your Daddy is paid into local futurities including 5-State, Gridiron, Cornhusker, Colorado Classic, Future Fortunes, and is also bought into the Royal Crown.

"When Jim Hunt told us that we had got this award, we were both kind of stunned. We surely didn't expect it," he says. Schaacks thank Larry Larson for his early support and marketing for their program, and Sammi Johnson (SJ Equine Productions) for all her hard work. "She's one of the greatest equine photographers in the horse industry today. She's been on our team since the beginning. Without her, our program wouldn't be where it is today," Schaack says.

Ultimately, he says he has God to thank for their program, down to the blessings of good people, good horses, and good timing.

Many proven mares are in the Schaack broodmare band, including those their three sons used competitively. "Whiskey" leaves his stamp on all his offspring.

DNA may help diagnose Lyme disease in horses

BY LINDSAY HUMPHREY

*N*ative to just about every state in the U.S., the all-too-common, always unwelcome tick finds its way into comfy places on both horses and humans. Even though a blood-sucking attachment is gross on its own, the disease-spreading component is the larger concern.

With a wide variety of tick-borne diseases to be aware of, finding a tick is a bit concerning. While Lyme disease isn't the most common in the Midwest, it's arguably the most detrimental.

"It's not a common disease but that might be because it's so hard to diagnose," said Dr. Dallas Shaw who's a veterinarian at 88 Equine in Buffalo, Wyoming.

LOCATION, LOCATION, LOCATION

According to the Center for Disease Control (CDC), incidences of Lyme Disease in both horses and humans is mostly concentrated in the northeastern region of the U.S. Perhaps that's why Steven Schutzer, a professor of medicine at Rutgers New Jersey Medical School, helped devise a special DNA test to identify the disease. *

"This new test might be easy to run and cheap, but collecting the sample of cerebrospinal fluid is neither of those things," said

Dr. Kyre Larrabee, who is a veterinarian in Gray County, Texas. "You can collect this sample from either an area near the poll or in the lumbar sacral region."

Collecting from the poll area requires laying the horse down and putting them under general anesthesia. While the second location can be done with the horse standing, they still need to be heavily sedated.

"If a horse is already showing severe neurological signs, then they probably aren't a good candidate for anesthesia," Dr. Larrabee said. "Collecting cerebrospinal fluid is a risky procedure, both for the safety of the horse and veterinarians during collection as well as for secondary infection in an extremely vulnerable place."

Right now, standard procedures for diagnosing Lyme disease in horses begin with ruling everything else out first and usually ends with starting preventative antibiotics.

Ticks of all shapes and sizes can attach to horses and transmit diseases. PHOTOS BY TODD JOHNSON, AGRICULTURAL COMMUNICATIONS SERVICES, OSU

“Even in human medicine, some doctors may begin treatment as a presumptive measure,” Dr. Larrabee said.

THE DEER TICK

“The bacteria causing Lyme disease [Borrelia burgdorferi] is really smart and adapts quickly through the immune system, which is why it’s hard to detect,” Dr. Larrabee said. “Lyme disease can go under the radar for a very long time before it’s discovered.”

Carried by the deer tick – Ixodes scapularis – Lyme disease is picked up by the tick during its life cycle when it attaches to various wild mammals, like small rodents and deer.

“If a tick attaches itself to an infected wild animal, like deer, they may not show any signs of illness but for horses and humans, we are considered dead-end hosts,” Dr. Larrabee said. “Luckily, it takes about 24 hours of attachment for the tick to transmit the disease.”

That is why doctors recommend checking yourself and horses for ticks daily. Prevention is the best medicine almost always, but especially in the case of Lyme disease.

“There’s no vaccine for horses yet, but there is one being used for dogs that’s been effective at preventing the disease,” Dr. Shaw said. “Regular grooming and keeping your animals out of places where ticks like to live is the best advice for preventing this disease.”

Mowing taller grass and trimming back trees is an efficient way to cut down on ticks. Dr. Larrabee also added that chickens can be helpful because they eat ticks.

MIDDLE: Similar to flea and tick prevention for dogs, spot treatments for horses are available. This particular product lasts for up to three weeks.

BOTTOM: Most fly sprays are equipped with products meant to repel ticks. PHOTOS BY LINDSAY HUMPHREY.

“Knowing how to remove a tick is also important,” Dr. Larrabee said. “You want to use tweezers and grasp as close to the attachment as possible. Don’t squeeze too hard though because you don’t want to leave any mouth parts behind in the skin.”

Contrary to what we grew up doing to remove and kill ticks, the best option is to seal the tick inside a plastic bag with some form of liquid, like alcohol or a household chemical.

“Dropping them in alcohol is a quick way to kill a tick and you’ll want to rub alcohol on the area where you just removed them,” Dr. Larrabee said. “You don’t want to crush them with your fingers or get any of the blood on you because it could be diseased.”

RUTGERS’S DNA TEST

“The unique part about the DNA test is they made a hybrid capture by isolating specific DNA from the bacteria,” Dr. Larrabee explained. “It’s a pretty neat study. And if you have a horse that’s showing a lot of neurological signs this test would potentially diagnose active Lyme disease as the culprit a lot faster than what we use now.”

Regular grooming is key to prevention tick-borne diseases as they can easily find a comfy place in long manes and tails.

Lyme disease

The practicality of collecting cerebrospinal fluid doesn't outweigh the benefits of a fast diagnosis in the Midwest where Lyme disease isn't at all common.

According to the CDC, reported cases of Lyme disease in humans in 2019 was highest in Pennsylvania at 6,700 cases. The same year, South Dakota reported seven cases and Wyoming had two incidences.

"Testing through DNA like Rutgers did is important because Lyme disease is zoonotic," Dr. Larrabee said. "It's something to always have in the back of your mind, no matter where you live, because it can happen anywhere at any time and early diagnosis can prevent a lot of headaches."

Cactus has a quiet disposition, good conformation, bone structure and is versatile He was a SD State High School Rodeo qualifier in the barrels. He also was the 2021 and 2022 Youth Breakaway Roping Champion and the 2021 All-Around Horse at the Ruby Buckle. His first foal crop will be 3 yr olds this spring, we started roping the sled on them as 2 yr olds. They have learned quickly and have quiet dispositions.

Bugs Fling is the once in a lifetime stallion that everyone dreams of having. He is low maintenance with a great mind. His conformation and thick bone are second to none and he has a mind that is even better than his build. We joke he is the secret of the Sandhills in Nebraska, with the look of a calf horse and the speed of a race horse. His foals are eligible for Future Fortunes, The Five State Breeders Futurity, Colorado State Stallion Incentive, Cornhusker Breeders Futurity, VGBRA, and the Cowboy State, and we are adding more incentives to his roster all the time. Ask us about our buy one get one breeding, only available at BH Stock Show.

Super quiet, gentle 3 year old stallion. He's been started in break-away, ranch sorting, and is loping barrels. Good bone, big hip and shoulder makes him a super athlete! And a guaranteed color producer. Crossed on sorrels, guaranteed a palomino; crossed on bays or blacks 50/50 palomino or buckskin.

He has been very limited in the number of shows he has been to (less than 10). He swept the IQHA Ranch Horse Futurity Open Class Events as a 3 yr old. We bred him to a select few mares this last year and he shipped and collected well. We are looking forward to some outstanding offspring Spring 2023. Little Joe is a very smart horse that is easy to get along with. He stands 14.2 hands and is a 5 Panel N.

HORSE SALE TERMS & CONDITIONS

2023 BLACK HILLS STOCK SHOW® Farm Credit Services of America HORSE SALE

1. Terms of the sale are U.S. currency, approved bank check, cashiers or certified check in U.S. funds only, payable within one hour of the sale's completion.
2. Registration papers will be withheld by sale management until checks clear the bank. At such time, if any owner wishes to obtain registration certificates immediately, the horse must be paid for in US currency or certified check. Central States Fair, Inc. reserves the right to withhold funds from any consignor until full settlement can be reached with the buyer.
3. Each animal will be sold to the highest bidder. The auctioneer in charge will settle any disputes as to bids and his decision will be final.
4. Announcements from the block will take precedence over the printed material and all other announcements. Every effort has been made to assure the correctness of this catalog, but the Black Hills Stock Show®, sale management and auctioneer are not responsible for errors or omissions, and assume no liability on its part or the seller as to statements, either verbal or written, regarding the horse sold. Catalog comments are provided by the seller. The Black Hills Stock Show® acts only as an agent for the several consignors in the sale, and does not assume any responsibility of the animal's future usefulness. If an adjustment needs to be made, it must be made between the purchaser and the consignor.
5. All horses, with or without stated guarantees announced from the block, sell "as is" with any guarantees strictly between the buyer and seller. Blood and urine testing may be done at the discretion of the buyer within twelve (12) hours of the horse changing ownership.
6. Title passes to the purchaser at the fall of the auctioneer's hammer, at which time the purchaser shall sign an acknowledgement of purchase that will be brought to him/her. Name and complete mailing address must be legible. At this time, the purchaser shall assume all responsibility for the risk of injury to said horse. It is the consignor's responsibility for and risk of injury to said horse.
7. The Black Hills Stock Show® Horse Sale Committee reserves the final and absolute right to interpret these rules and regulations, and arbitrarily settle and determine all matters, questions or differences in regard thereto, or otherwise arising out of, or connected with, or incident to, the Sale.
8. The Black Hills Stock Show® Management, Kjerstad Event Center or their employees will not be responsible for any injury to or loss of any animal or accidents thereby, or any injury or loss of life to any participants or spectators during the Black Hills Stock Show®.

Absolutley stunning Medicine Hat paint. These horses are revered by the Lakota people and considered sacred. Good with farrier; hauls great, stands tied calmly, gets along well with other horses. There are literally no holes in this young horse. He is bred to fly, but is also very handy, and has a stop to die for. I can see him as a barrel horse, calf horse, top-notch breakaway horse, exceptional ranch gelding, or a drop-dead gorgeous trail horse who is sure-footed and willing and WILL get you noticed! Had he not gotten too tall for me, he would never be for sale. Guaranteed sound in every way.

Suede is a 2019 model gelding standing 15.2 and is made right. This horse has seen a ton of miles from big country to the feedlot and everything in between. He is a strong, stout, athletic gelding that has the ability to go all day and then some. He is quickfooted, responsive, and has the cow sense making him a great ranch mount with a fancy handle. This gelding is gentle to be around and has been a real pleasure for us to own. Suede has the size and athletic ability to make an arena prospect as well. Here is a shiny, shapely bay gelding that has the bloodlines and the try to make someone a true top horse in any string he goes to. Any questions call Zach at 308-430-8902.

Two Bit has seen a lot in his short time of riding. He was started late in life. I have ridden him in the hills, dragged hundreds of calves, rode him in the feedyard for a couple years. He has gotten really quiet and dang sure broke. He is started heeling. He just needs hauled to get finished. I guarantee this gelding sound in every way. Two Bit has a lot of speed and a huge stop. He would make a calf roping horse with little effort.

Check out this cute cute 14.2hh bay gelding. Shorty is the handy guy that is always great to have around with his one-hand neck rein and quick feet. He has been used extensively in feed lots sorting cattle and will always stay broke. If you prefer trail riding, he will sure be one you can count on. Shorty is very quiet and aims to please. This gelding is an easy keeper, and good to catch. For videos/information check out lynchperformance.com.

GELDING

Cinch is that handy sized gelding, a really athletic 15.1 hands. He really hunts cattle in the breakaway with nice stop. He's finished in the heading with enough speed, a lot of rate and strong enough from the horn to handle cattle well. He has nice rate around the corner in the heeling as well. We have even tied some calves down on him. He is extremely cowy and can hold one out of the herd with ease. He is a in your pocket kind of horse with a nice personality, but tough enough to go use for a big job. Can be a little cinchy if stalled and fed up but rides right out of it. 108 | POPEYE

SYLVER BECHEN- RAPID CITY, SD

2014 PALOMINO PONY GRADE

PONY

When kids dream about ponies, they dream of Popeye. Popeye is pure eye candy and gets noticed. He will meet you at the gate, endure endless baths and let littles pick up his feet while looking at them lovingly. Popeye has worked the barrels, poles, goats, driving and tracks the calf sled. He is perfect for a teeny cowpoke and can advance to PeeWee rodeos. Video on Wendy Bechen's Facebook page.

Shakira is a 14 yr old AQHA palomino mare. She is a super gentle, 2D/3D barrel horse and 21-22 second poles. She is perfect for an older person, weekend barrel racer or youth rodeo horse. She loves people, is easy to catch, haul, shoe, load, and will stand at mounting block to get on. She is a Sadies Frosty Drift Daughter and a Frenchmans Guy granddaughter. Owned last six years and she has been such a confidence booster for me. I use her on the ranch, barrels, and enjoyment. 12 year old daughter used her in poles and barrels. Welcome to try her at ranch. Vaccinations and sound! Videos and pictures call Fanny Brewer 605-200-0236 or Jess 605-200-0020.

Here is Cool Hand Luke, as nice a gelding as I've ever owned myself. Luke is the kind of special that gives you his heart, then goes to sleep when you quit asking! It's rare to ride one that stays out of your way and helps you do your job like Luke, a good fit for almost any level roper. A true multiple event horse that excels in each, also a deluxe, one-handed, ranch horse. He has plenty of speed, but is really ratey whether he is breakawaying, tie-down, heading, heeling, quietly sorting pairs, or dragging calves to the fire for Grandpa or grandson. Luke hunts cattle with a low neck and a good move in the heading, but his sliding stop and strong finish heeling and roping calves is killer." He's been hauled and stays great in the box. Come try Luke at Dakota Performance Horses. FMI Levi Grimes (605)441-9271.

Shooter is cute as can be, standing right at 14 hands tall and is as broke as you could want! This little gelding is talented and handy both in the arena and out on the ranch. He's as solid outdoors as he is in the arena. Run one down and rope it in the pasture, use him in the shorting alley, drag calves at the branding, or take him to the ranch shows on the weekend. He is well-rounded, very versatile and super good-minded. Shooter is a big stopper, great handle, has body control, soft in the face, and is easy to ride. If ranching or arena riding isn't for you, he's a very solid trail horse as well. Sure-footed, one-hand broke, goes where you point him and isn't a spooky looky horse out on the trails. Cool little gelding that we believe could make a jam up heel, breakaway or calf horse overnight. Not to mention he has the pedigree to back his talent being a Playgun out of Zack T Wood/High Brow Cat bred mare! FMI www.schmitthorseranch.com or call 507-459-8654.

Handsome is very handsome. He is a kind, sweet, curious, built correct, sky blue roan with a great set of AQHA papers! We raised him and started him right! Here is a high quality horse that was very easy to start under saddle. Handsome has handled everything from tarps to loud noises with excellence. He saddles right up in any season. He is a smooth riding, perfect sized, well-muscled, easy-to-catch gelding that meets you at the gate. He is excellent to load, bathe, trim and shoe. Barefoot or shod, your choice. Solid black legs and feet. We have raised, trained and ridden lots of siblings to Handsome, many are great ranch, rope, family, performance, cow horses and show horses. Handsome is very versatile and has everything going for him.

Jack is a very kind 10-year old gelding. For the past 3 years, he has been shown in the reining and the ranch versatility events. He has been at the top of the class in Ranch Riding, Ranch Trail, and Ranch Rail and reining. He won an AQHA youth all around last year. He has NRHA earnings and he is great to ride outside and will watch a cow. He has been roped on both ends. Jack is a very fancy, fun and a pretty mover. He even has a couple of AQHA halter points. Take advantage of a nice palomino gelding. FMI call 308-672-5090. The photo is from the 2022 NRHA Summer Slide in Denver, Colorado.

GRADE

Pistol is a 13.1 hand bay Quarter pony gelding that has had a full-time job on the ranch moving and sorting cattle and wrangling horses. And he is sure no stranger to a rope. We have roped and dragged calves, he is also well started heeling in the arena. There is no foolishness about him, he stays broke with time off. Pistol rides just like a nice Quarter Horse. Side passes and open any gate on him. He rides off your seat and legs and is gentle enough for our two and four year old girls to ride. He will also lay down on cue or side pass up to a mounting block for the kids to get on. Sound.

Jax is a big stout gentle giant. I have never had trouble with this horse, no buck or funny business. He loads good, crosses water, side passes, backs. At 16 hands he has the potential to be a pickup horse, head horse, all around ranch horse or take him to the hills and ride the trails. Plus gentle enough for the kids. He has been my favorite since I got him as a yearling and will be a hard one to let go. Will have 45 plus days with Paul Griemsmann on the roping side. Reno is a gorgeous, strong-made palomino gelding backed with proven performance horse genetics in barrel racing, roping, and cow horse events. He's a very nice ranch horse and has been ridden extensively outside. This horse is quick-footed, cowy and a natural athlete. He has a great temperament and wants to please. He's always the first to meet you at the gate. Reno is currently in training with Justin Collins to begin his rope horse career, but is very broke and could also be ready for the barrel futurities as a 5 yr old. This is an exceptional prospect that is eligible for millions in incentive and bonus money. Paid into Pink and Ruby Buckles and Future Fortunes. Also eligible for Tomorrow's Legends, Breeders Challenge, Colorado Classic, 5-State, Nexus, Cornhusker, and more! Videos will be available on the SJ Equine Facebook page or call Keri Castell at 605-206-0930 or Ryan Casteel at 605-423-6000.

Iprefercorona (aka Buzz) is one heck of a ranch, pickup and head horse. He has been our #1 ranch horse and go-to guy for everything since we have started him. He is so level headed but has the run to get up and go. We have won numerous ropings and ranch rodeos on him. He leaves flat and has a lot of speed and cow. He scores great and solid in the box. He will rope a super slow steer; turn around and rope hard runners back to slow cattle. Buzz is a super honest head horse and loves his job. Anyone can get along with him from a kid to open roper to old mans head horse. If you're looking for a head horse to take you to the pay window, Buzz will do it! Call Luke (605) 484-8568 for more information or visit our Facebook page at JA Bar Performance Horses for updated videos up to sale day. Also go to www.jlhorses.com and see videos of him throughout his whole career/life as we raised this horse.

Big, strong gelding that has been used for all kinds of ranch work. He was one of my main mounts during last year's calving season during extremely difficult weather conditions. I have roped many cows and bulls on him as well as doctored calves in the pasture and drug calves to the fire. I also used him to rope bulls at a bull riding school last spring. 16 hands, 1200 pounds. Search for "Horner Cattle Company and Performance Horses" on Facebook for pictures and videos.

If you want to stand out at the next jackpot or branding come check out "Stitch," he's an eye-catching roan gelding that is quiet and extremely talented. I've hauled and won money on him roping both ends. He has spent time gathering and doctoring yearlings in the Flint Hills of Kansas. Last summer a high school kid used him on a ranch in Oklahoma panhandle. For a big horse he is very athletic and will really watch a cow. For videos go to JAR MR SUN 472 on YouTube.

GELDING

Socks is a 6-year old sorrel gelding. He stands 15.2 hands and weighs 1250 lbs. He is big boned and has a deep heart-girth. Socks is a very nice ranch horse and rope horse, he is handy and rides around well. He is smooth at all of his gaits. Socks has been used to pick up broncs this past summer and did very well. Socks is a head horse, has great run and is good in the box and has been hauled some. Socks has also been used as a using horse and ranch horse. He has been used to gather and rope strays outside. He will go anywhere you point him. Going down deep drop offs and through water doesn't bother him. He has a lot of heart and will do anything you ask of him. 100% sound and no vices. He is easy to get along with and loads and rides in the trailer well. He will stand patiently tied and is good in the stall or turned out with a group. If you are looking for a very handy, athletic, perfect aged gelding Socks would be the right one for you! Call 563-543-6355 with questions. 2015 BROWN PONY GRADE

PONY

This pony can keep up with the big horses to gather a pasture, sort bulls, or work in the branding pen. He can go all day. He's been taken through parades and doesn't act up or run off. He was given to us by family and Baxter has trained him to ride, pull, breakaway calves, and perform ranch work. Approximately 7 years old by veterinary dental exam. If you don't need a pony, he'd make a good lawn ornament and you'd be investing in this young horse trainer's future. All proceeds go to helping him continue to break/train bigger, better, horses.
