WHY?

The Columbia River Circuit, Gem State Stampede, Pendleton Round-up and sponsoring rodeo committees are dedicated to promoting the sport of rodeo in the Pacific Northwest. In doing so, we all feel it is important to provide opportunities such as this school to develop and improve the skills of young rough stock competitors. The numbers of rough stock riders has been dwindling but through efforts such as this, we can turn the tide. Last year, we had 28 kids participate in this school. Many of those kids went on to compete all summer, qualify for and attend events like the National High School Rodeo Finals and several other Finals events, plus earn college scholarships to earn their degree while competing for their college rodeo teams. This school includes livestock tailored to each participants level and our instructors are all National Finals Rodeo contestants who themselves started at this level. Ultimately, through these efforts we will increase the number and quality of rough stock competitors and give local youth an opportunity at an affordable price. The sponsorships will help grow this school and will enable us to scholarship any participant who may not otherwise be able to afford to attend.

Brennan Maletzke Saddle Bronc

"My bronc riding career is still in its early stages but the sport has already blessed me a ton with, lifelong friends, memories, buckles, and even college scholarships. Not coming from the typical rodeo family background that a lot of kids in the sport have, made getting a safe and successful start riding broncs more difficult for me. I 100% credit the Gem State Stampede Bronc Clinic for giving me the opportunity to get the best possible introduction to the sport. I have been to several other bronc riding clinics in the Pacific Northwest, and the Gem State Clinic is by far the best. The amount of one on one instruction given cannot be matched, and the stock supplied is perfect to learn on they have beginner level steers and horses to gain confidence on, all the way up to more advanced bucking horses for riders who want to fine tune their skills. The other factor that makes this bronc clinic such a great place to learn is the comradery. The group of people who put this school on are a great group. They genuinely want to help you however they can and want to see you succeed, I look forward to returning year after year."

RyLee Heath Bareback

"I was a hockey player, who wanted to rodeo! At 15 I decided to try and ride bareback horses and was looking for a place to start. My first clinic was the Gem State Clinic, and it changed my life. I attended the clinic the next year as well and learned even more. The instruction is tailored to each individual's ability, making it perfect for every level of rider from the beginner to a PRCA member. The instruction, and support during the clinic were second to none, but even better is the continued support I get from those involved even three years later. I have been blessed with a Full Ride Scholarship to Sam Houston State University to ride bareback horses for their Nationally acclaimed program, and it all started with the Gem State Clinic."
