

Fair Exchange

January
2017

Message from Dane Dugan, RMAF President

I would like to start by wishing all of you a Happy New Year! May the next twelve months bring prosperity in your professional and personal lives. A new year signals a fresh start for many of us, myself included. Cheers to whatever great things that may bring!

As we announced at convention, our theme for 2017 is "Set Your Wheels in Motion: Activate. Elevate. Innovate.". This seems very fitting for this time of year because we all know that in order to create change or make progress towards a goal, you must take the first step. Activate your action plan. Get moving. In future editions of the newsletter, we plan on highlighting how our membership is activating, elevating and innovating in communities throughout our region. This industry is known for being great at all three of those things so it will be fun to recognize and showcase those accomplishments.

Just like the holiday season, fairs always bring about those nostalgic feelings of your childhood. I chose the picture included with this article because I'm constantly reminded how my experiences in 4-H, FFA and working at the fair helped shape who I am today. Many people just think of the fair as cotton candy and carnival rides. For me, it was home. I'd spend my summers volunteering in the fair office and helping with landscaping around the grounds. I quickly gained a sense of ownership and pride in the facility and am forever thankful for the wonderful people I met through this experience. It also introduced me to a unique industry that I always want to be a part of - whether that's managing a fair or as a service member.

The number one aspect of the fair industry that makes it so great...the people. These relationships are incredibly meaningful and they really do last a lifetime. I'm so thankful for the many friendships and sense of family that has been built because of them. It makes trekking through the tough times so much more bearable.

Speaking of people, I want to make a special shout-out to our Executive Secretary, Nancy Pitz for all that she does to ensure our association is successful. Nancy is a cornerstone and anchor for everything that happens with RMAF. Simply put, thank you for all that you do.

Well, the ride of 2017 is already in motion. Let's enjoy and make the most of it.

This may be your last newsletter!

If you have not paid your 2017 dues, your membership is in danger of becoming INACTIVE.

Eldon E. Rice Passed away January 1, 2017 at Rosebud Healthcare Center surrounded by his family.

Once upon a time, there along the banks of the lower Yellowstone Valley near Savage, Montana, arrived a toe head on October 30, 1933. He was born to George and Ottoni Rice following their arrival from Oklahoma in a Model-T, joining four siblings; Loraine, George Jr., Virginia and Eloise. Grandpa Pedersen and Uncle Albert Pedersen were on a sugar beet farm, where everyone worked on the small diversified farm raising crops and cattle during the "Dirty Thirties" until they acquired their own farm near the intake diversion. Things started and agriculture became more favorable. Eldon graduated from Savage High School in 1952.

He attended Montana State from 1952-1956 receiving a degree in General Agriculture and Commission in the US Army, Armor Branch, serving in Fort Knox, Kentucky, Korea, and Fort Lewis, Washington, before starting his Extension Career in Rosebud-Treasure Counties on February 1, 1960. He returned to Montana State and received a Master's Degree in Range Science in 1965.

Eldon served on many boards and committees over the years, serving as secretary for several. Eldon made acquaintances easy and, until coal development started to expand open-pit mining, he knew about every family in Rosebud and Treasure Counties. Early in Extension Career, he met Morla Cole and they married in June 1962. From this marriage Morla Elizabeth was born, a beautiful toe head little girl just like her dad.

Eldon and family purchased the old OZ Ranch on Armells Creek in 1970. A variety of animals were always on the place, keeping the work ethic going along with career work. Due to coal development and rapid growth forecast for the area, the County Commissioners requested that Eldon coordinate planning board activities. He said he didn't know anything about planning, but the Commissioners responded with "You know the people!"

The planning commission carried out activities from 1974-1985, when budgets were down sized, resulting in job termination. Eldon sought new employment and landed in Pagosa Springs, Colorado, in another county agent role. Morla Elizabeth was in college first at Dawson Community College and later Dickenson Community College where the love of her life, Mike Moser, had a full scholarship to play basketball.

Retirement was in the picture for Eldon in late 1988, thus returning to Rosebud County, where he became involved in the County Fair. 1985 was perhaps one of the most eventful years, he sought new employment early, went through divorce in October, and married Velma in December. This expanded family brought two step-children; Jess Owen Bardon and Jerette Lynne Bardon.

Eldon was always drawn to the farm environment where he worked on various farms, particularly helping with sugar beet harvest, driving truck in the Howard Valley for nearly 50 years.

Eldon was a member of several organizations: the MSU Alumni Board for two terms, Rosebud-Treasure Wildlife Association, and Rocky Mountain Association of Fairs, serving as president in 1999 and receiving fair manager of the year Kermit Fleming Award, thus a life member of Hiram Lodge #52, serving as Master of the Lodge five times, and also an active in York Rite. He is a 55 year Lions Club Member and served in several offices. Eldon's hobbies included harmonica playing, bird watching, hunting the Montana moss agate, and working on farms. He volunteered a lot too!

Eldon is survived by his wife, Velma; daughter, Morla E. (Mike) Moser; step-son Jess (Robin) Bardone; Jerette (Derick) Mitzkus; siblings: George (Jinny) Rice, Virginia Rahr, Eloise Edwards, Buford (Darlyne) Rice, Bert (Deanna) Rice, Steven (Judy) Rice, Emery (Jody) Rice, and Jim (Barb) Rice; grandchildren: Mallorie Moser, Brady Mitzkus, Gwendolyn Mitzkus, Shannon Duede, and Sara Camp; and numerous nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents; sister Loraine Carter; and grandson Mikray George Morris Moser.

THINGS I MISSED

Little did I know, after I finally arrived home, I would be grateful for missing so much.

Around 2am on April 18th, 2016, the Emergency Broadcast System fired a piercing warning in my ears. I had fallen asleep in Houston, Texas, with my earbuds in, listening to the soothing sounds of cello music, but was soon jolted awake by the threat of fifteen inches of rain and a tornado warning. Unfortunately, I was scheduled to leave only a few hours later to start a long journey back to Washington State with my truck and cargo trailer. Due to highway closures and extremely dangerous conditions, it was clear to me in the morning I would not be leaving. This was just the first of three obstacles I would face on my way home.

A day later the skies were friendlier, so I took full advantage of this window and left early. Two days into my trip, I rewarded myself with a hotel room in Las Vegas and a much needed full night's rest. With my battery charged and a bright morning ahead, I left the hotel and did my routine safety check on the trailer. I was shocked at what I saw. My heart sank a little as I stared at an adjuster bolt from my trailer brakes sitting next to one of my tires. It was not a good sign, rather the start to a long and expensive day of repairs. After tearing the wheel off I discovered the bearings had collapsed around the spindle, completely destroying the brake hub. Immediately, I knew I had dodged a bullet. This kind of damage frequently causes fires that can result in a complete loss of the trailer and its contents. A wave of gratefulness swept over me as I remembered how I almost didn't stop the night before. If I hadn't, there is no telling where in Nevada the trailer would have given up all hope. Lady Luck shined a little brighter that day as I was led to a mobile trailer repairman named Gary who fixed it up for me.

Almost $500 and 9 hours later I was back on the road headed north - but not for long.

After driving for a bit, I pulled into a small gas station next to a motel and restaurant. It was the only thing around for a long distance in any direction. Standing there, with his hood up, looking confused, was Eli, a college student whose car's radiator had just been destroyed by hitting a bunny. His VW Rabbit was killed by a rabbit, which in turn also lost its life in the misfortunate mishap. I spent the next couple of hours helping Eli and making sure he had company while waiting for the tow truck. By the time it arrived, it was approaching midnight, so I pulled over next to some idling semi-trucks and quickly fell asleep.

Eventually, I made it home on Saturday, two days behind schedule. The delays were frustrating, to say the least, and cost me some opportunities at home. I had to remind myself to be at peace when things like this happen because it's not the events I miss that make a difference, but rather the events I don't know I missed. I made it home safe, and in the end, that's really all that matters. Would I have made it home ok if I had left on time? Of course, there is no way of knowing that answer, but for the purpose of this article, I did a little research. I searched the Highway State Patrol records for incidents that happened during two different time periods. The first, on Highway 93, during the day of April 20th, north of Las Vegas, where I would have been if I had not been delayed by the storm in Houston. The second, at the same location, but a day later, where I would have been had my trailer brakes not failed. Three events caught my attention: a major crash near Wells, Nevada, a semi-truck rollover near Filer, Idaho, and a 46-year-old woman arrested for traveling one hundred miles per hour on the wrong side of the highway.

Fortunately, I showed up late for all of these.

I've never subscribed to the idea that everything happens for a reason, but I firmly believe many things do. I live my life by this rule and never question when my plans get changed by circumstances out of my control. Thanks to my little research project, next time something happens, it will be easier to kick back, take a deep breath, and be thankful for all the things I've missed.

91st Annual Convention November 9 - 12, 2016 Doubletree Spokane

The beautiful city of Spokane, Washington was the site for the 91st annual convention of the Rocky Mountain Association of Fairs convention held on November 9 - 12, 2016. The Doubletree Spokane City Center hotel is located on the banks of the Spokane River in downtown Spokane and served as the host hotel for 436 delegates representing fairs in Washington, Oregon, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Colorado, Utah, Nevada and North & South Dakota.

Musical and variety acts showcased on the stages in the Grand Ballroom following each meal. Johnna Johnson got the group motivated to "Just Jump" with her lively and humorous keynote address on Thursday morning. The educational programming included a variety of workshops including:

Volunteers: The Greatest Generation, Baby Boomers, Gen-Xers and the Millennials; Vendor Issues from A to Z; Farm to Fork Movement - It's Here to Stay; Volunteers: Recruiting & Retaining; To App or Not to App; Latest Social Media Trends - What? Not Again!; Service Member Marketing Materials - What Fairs Need; Interim Event Set-ups/Tracking to the Maintenance

Staff; Livestock Shows at Fairs; The Power of Great Service; Gun Show/Concealed Weapons on Your Grounds; Fairgrounds Design Trends; Rodeo Trends & Issues; Using iPads for Exhibit Check-in, Judging & Kiosks; Unique/Creative Low Maintenance Landscaping; Gate Promotions that Work; Your Fair in the "cloud"; Spin to Win: Insure the Media is Telling Your Story Your Way; Livestock Show Ethics. The group loaded on buses on Saturday for a trip the Spokane Interstate Fairgrounds for a tour, lunch and a workshop on Drones - Is there a proper place & time for this new tool?, presented by Bird Eye of the Sky.

Award for recognition of outstanding individual in the RMAF membership were presented throughout the convention. Janet Konkell, Weld County Fair, Greeley, Colorado is the Fair Manager of the Year, Criss Crozier Neiman, Wyoming State Fair, Douglas, Wyoming is the Fair Person of the Year and Marty Davis, is the Service Member of the Year. The Hall of Fame award was presented to Bob Batista, Western Idaho Fair, Boise, Idaho and the family of Lloyd Shelhamer accepted the Heritage award. Mr. Shelhamer was very active in the RMAF during the years that he established United Tote using in the racing industry.

The final dinner on Saturday night was highlighted by the presentation of the Summit Awards to the fairs that participated with their photos and marketing pieces from their 2016 events. The gavel was passed to the incoming President of the RMAF, Dane Dugan who announced the theme for 2017 "Set Your Wheels in Motion - active, elevate & innovate" and invited delegates to save the date of November 8 - 11, 2017 for the 92nd annual convention to be held in Colorado Springs, Colorado at the Hotel Elegante in conjunction with the Colorado Association of Fairs & Shows.

2016 Convention Sponsors

2016 Convention Sponsors

I was so surprised when I was awarded the 2016 Fair Manager of the Year that I did not thank those who have supported me. Without the support of the Weld County Commissioners the fair would not even be possible. The 21 member Weld County Fair Board are the ones who make the difficult decisions and give generously of their time and talents.

I am so fortunate that Jenn Eastwood works with me. She is always smiling and is so capable and willing to help in any way she can. Over the years we have worked together she has taken on a greater role and I truly appreciate her.

The most important people who support me in are my three daughters; Erin, Sara and Beth and their husbands and those wonderful grandchildren. They were all active in fair when they were young and appreciate what it takes to put on a fair.

I absolutely could not do what I do without my husband Mike. He supports me in every way. He listens to my ideas and makes suggestions to make them happen. He is always there to let me decompress (sometimes I am sure he has heard enough!!) He keeps the home fires burning!!

When I attended my first RMAF Convention in 2011 Jim Abend-schan and Bill Ogg took the time to show me the ropes and make sure that I had a great convention. I soon learned that is the how all members of RMAF are – friendly, helpful, supportive and encouraging. I am so grateful for an organization like RMAF and its members. We all support each other, share ideas and experiences with each other and truly become one another's fair family. I am humbled, honored and grateful to have been selected.

Three Top Tips for Young Professionals

Submitted by Tom Aldrich, Western Montana Fair

In my short time as an event-oriented public sector professional under the age of 30, I have one Fair, over 200 events, thousands of pages of bureaucratic busy work, and an armored truck worth of fundraising dollars under my belt. These are the top three things I have learned since transitioning from the private sector to my position with the Western Montana Fair.

Never stop learning The ability to learn quickly is expected of young people. We can soak up and retain knowledge from YouTube tutorials and online forums like no generation ever has. The internet makes us infinitely wise about whatever we choose to remember. This is our single biggest asset in the work place and gives us a distinctive edge. Training seminars and workshops seem antiquated compared to self-teaching. Learning is motivation, too. We ought to choose who we work with and where we work based on the lessons we can learn and how that knowledge can be incorporated into our professional development.

Do creative work in-house/outsource the busy work Young professionals can save our organizations loads of money and utilize our learning mindset by doing creative work in-house. The basic idea here is to outsource busy work that bogs us down and demotivates us while bringing creative work that motivates and bonds us back to the office. A quick read online shows us the exact strategies expensive marketing and media companies utilize while most social media platforms have marketing tools that are very accessible. Most media sponsors are happy to give advice on this topic. Design work does take some talent and time, but being able to incorporate it into one's skillset is very valuable. The Western Montana Fair won first place in RMAF's Summit Awards for a Fair logo that was made in-house. A small fortune was saved in making it and our only cost was purchasing design software. Doing design in-house and controlling our marketing strategy lead us to have a better connection to the impact and community while giving us a more consistent presentation of our brand.

Share knowledge and tell a story There is an antiquated idea that sharing knowledge with colleagues diminishes our value and importance as an employee. Someone who believes this lie would say we should make ourselves as proprietary as possible for the sake of job security and leverage. This just isn't true. Networking opportunities and references for the future are much more valuable than job security in the present. There is no sacrifice in sharing knowledge. We are a generation of story tellers. Whether it's social media or future job interviews, who we are is the sum of what we know and how we present ourselves and our organization to the world. 2016 was the best fair Missoula had in a long time. Our director resigned the week before the event. We suffered low numbers due to crazy weather the year prior. Not much was expected from our young staff. What's our story? We are the underdogs who put on a storybook fair by being industrious, creative, and hardworking!

What's your story?
