Don't Miss the Final Weekend of the 2026 Tennessee Valley Fair!

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. – There's still time to experience the excitement of the Tennessee Valley Fair! The 106th annual Fair wraps up Sunday, September 20, giving East Tennesseans one final weekend to enjoy their favorite attractions, entertainment and fair traditions.

From thrilling midway rides and delicious fair food to livestock exhibits and live entertainment, the final days of the Fair offer plenty of opportunities to make lasting memories.

Music fans can look forward to the Ultimate King of Pop Experience on Friday, September 18, and country music favorite Tracy Byrd on Sunday, September 20, at the Homer Hamilton Theatre.

Sunday's festivities will also feature Volunteer Championship Wrestling, bringing action-packed entertainment to the Fair's closing day.

Families can continue to enjoy attractions such as All American Racing Pigs, the Rudy Uresti Wild West Show and educational experiences throughout the fairgrounds.

Visitors are also encouraged to explore the Fair's competitive exhibits, livestock displays and agricultural attractions before the gates close for another year.

And no visit would be complete without enjoying favorite fair foods, taking a spin on the midway and watching the nightly fireworks sponsored by the Tennessee Lottery.

Whether you've already visited or haven't made it out yet, the final weekend is the perfect opportunity to experience "The Great American Swine-A-Bration."

The Tennessee Valley Fair concludes Sunday, September 20, at Chilhowee Park & Exposition Center in Knoxville.
