TEXAS BEGINS HERE

Laredo's appealing restaurant and cuisine choices take the best of many cultures and combine it on one plate. Come experience the breakfast Mariachi (taco) that will make your taste buds sing like the traditional Mexican musician. What makes Laredo's food taste so good? Find the answer to that question with Frontera Fusion, a culinary learning experience; read on to find more about this attraction and many more around our city..

Downtown Laredo streets tell tales 265 years in the making through architecture and museums all found within our Villa de San Agustin Historic District. More stories are to be discovered in five other historic districts. Refer to the history section of this guide to find them all!

While visiting, there are great options to select from when looking for a hotel to fit any travel budget. Look for our accommodations map and hotel listings in this guide.

Beyond food and history, there are many activities to take in while you are here. Buy a Mexican curio along San Bernardo Avenue, hike a trail along the Rio Grande take in scenic views while birding, or golf on the edge of the country by visiting The Max, rated one of the best public courses in the nation and No. 1 in Texas! This Guide will give you a glimpse at everything Laredo has to offer. Plan your trip to Laredo and come live it up with us!

HISTORY

You may recognize the famous phrase “the streets of Laredo.” Walked by pioneers, independent spirits, politicians, Native Americans, conquistadors, modern-day nomads, and country-men with sworn allegiance to seven different countries over the last 261 years, these streets are imbued with a storied past heading into a fascinating future. This mix with the present is evident to the many visitors today as they walk the various streets and historic districts of this community on the edge of the country.

SAN AGUSTIN HISTORIC DISTRICT

Receiving national designation in 1973, San Agustin Historic District is the oldest section of Laredo and was founded by Tomas Sanchez in 1755. New Spain officially designated the settlement as a villa and christened it San Agustin de Laredo after a town in Santander, Spain. A plaza mayor, or central plaza, was laid out, and porciones, or Spanish land grants, were issued to heads of households. The anchor icon of the district today is the towering spire of San Agustin Cathedral overlooking the plaza of same name, San Agustin Plaza.

OLD MERCADO HISTORIC DISTRICT

During the 1880s, the city of Laredo began to expand northward from San Agustin Plaza. The building of a new City Hall in 1883 and 1884 caused businesses, hotels, and restaurants to relocate north of San Agustin Plaza. The City Hall was known as El Mercado because its rear portion housed stalls for vendors. The feature structure of this district houses the Laredo Center for the Arts and the Webb County Heritage Foundation today.

FORT MCINTOSH HISTORIC DISTRICT

Fort McIntosh was designated a National Historic District in 1975 and is a State Archaeological Landmark. Currently serving as the home campus of Laredo College, the fort was established as a Camp Crawford in March 1849, near the point of an old Spanish and Native American river crossing known as Paso de Indio. By 1850, the fort was renamed in honor of Lieutenant Colonel James Simmons McIntosh, a hero who lost his life after the Battle of Molino del Rey.

EL AZTECA LOCAL HISTORIC DISTRICT

This predominantly residential neighborhood was established between 1870 and 1940; of note are the frequency of Mexican vernacular architectural style homes and structures. A major disruption to the area came with the development of interstate Highway 35 in the 1960s, when the neighborhood was bisected to install roadway infrastructure. It remains a low-to moderate-income residential area today.

ST. PETER'S HISTORIC DISTRICT

Bounded by Santa Maria Avenue, the Texas-Mexican tracks, the Missouri-Pacific tracks and Hidalgo Street on the south, St. Peter's neighborhood was developed between 1881 and World War I. The neighborhood was named for St. Peter's Church, on 1510 Matamoros Street, which was constructed in 1896 and 1897. It was Laredo's second Catholic church and the first for English speakers. Many of the homes and the church structure remain in working condition today.

1. SAN AGUSTIN CATHEDRAL

This church began as a hut on the corner of Zaragoza and San Agustin in the days of Laredo's founding in 1755; its second construction in 1789 was a small stone church (see the brick outline in front of the church); the third is the present structure.

2. CASA ORTIZ

This rear portion of the structure dates back to the late 1700s, but the front was constructed between 1829 and 1830. This home is rumored to have underground tunnels and gold buried on the property.

3. REPUBLIC OF THE RIO GRANDE MUSEUM

This was home to Bartolomé Garcia, great grandson of Laredo's founder (Thomas Sanchez) and three-time Mayor of Laredo. The structure served as the capitol of The Republic of the Rio Grande.

4. LA POSADA HOTEL

This was the site of the town hall, which also housed a jail. It was converted to Laredo High School in 1886. It was torn down in 1916 and new construction was erected for Laredo High School. It later served as an elementary school and was rehabilitated as a hotel in 1961. The ballrooms once served as a 19th century convent as well.

5. THE TACK ROOM | BRUNI-CANTU BUILDING

Originally built as a residence, in 1889 it housed the Telephone Exchange, which was equipped to provide telephone service to more than 2,000 customers in both Laredo and Nuevo Laredo. It later returned to a use as a residence.

6. BENAVIDES VIDAURRI HOUSE

This home was built for Col. Santos Benavides and used as a U.S. Customs house. Benavides was the highest ranking Hispanic officer in the Confederate Army, a Laredo mayor, and also a Texas legislator from 1879 to 1884. After remodeling in 1907, it became residence to Tomasa Benavides Vidaurri.

7. LEYENDECKER HOUSE

This was built for Laredo's first postmaster John Z. Leyendecker - a German immigrant.

8. MULLALLY HOUSE

This house was constructed for Judge J.F. Mullally, federal district judge from 1905 to 1938.

9. JUDGE JOSE MARIA RODRIGUEZ HOUSE

This home served as residence of J.M. Rodriguez, Webb County judge from 1878 to 1973. The judge was born in San Antonio and moved to Laredo as a child in 1861. During his 35-years term in office, he would be witness to the 1886 election riot between the Botas & Guaraches

10. FORMER LAREDO NATIONAL BANK

This building served as the Laredo National Bank until 1957.

11. EL MERCADO | FORMERLY CITY HALL

The structure served three purposes: City Hall, a performing arts theater and Market Hall. The building was once decorated with a tall belfry that was destroyed by a tornado spawned from a hurricane 1905.

12. PLAZA THEATER

This 1,586-seat structure was the most luxurious theater in town during its inauguration. The interior featured a balcony with a beautiful canvas mural hand painted by a Laredo artist.

13. GONZALEZ TREVINO GROCERY STORE

A commercial building erected at the turn-of-the-century, it mostly served as a grocery store, except for a short time when it housed a saloon and gambling house.

14. BBVA COMPAS BANK | FORMERLY LAREDO ROBERT E. LEE HOTEL

This was one of Laredo's first skyscrapers and had a roof garden. It started as the Robert E. Lee Hotel, it later served as the Plaza Hotel from 1940 to 1979. The hotel became the headquarters for all social and civic activities.

15. BRUNI-VERGARA HOUSE

This was built as a residence and is one of the oldest buildings in this section of downtown

OUTDOOR ACTIVITIES

Enjoy a diverse selection of scenic getaways that can be explored during the three-day festival.

LAREDO BIRDING FESTIVAL

Blessed with a rich and diverse river eco-system, Laredo is considered part of the “birdiest” corridor in North America. Here you will find warm southern Texas hospitality, a dynamic city that bridges two cultures, and, of course, a wide array of colorful birds!

Each year, during the Laredo Birding Festival birders can select from a variety of full-day trips. Escorted by professional field guides and local members of the Monte Mucho Audubon Society, birders will have an opportunity to explore the natural beauty of Laredo’s riverfront, creek systems, nature trails, and scenic private ranch land while deepening their avian knowledge of south Texas.

From our prized bird, the Morelet’s Seedeater, to various kingfishers, hawks, sparrows, and warblers, the Laredo Birding Festival will not disappoint! You will have the opportunity to observe and spend time in the field with nearly 200 species of magnificent birds and a professional field guide to help you spot them all!

Enjoy a diverse selection of scenic getaways that can be explored during the three-day 2020 Laredo Birding Festival. For those who have already birdwatched in Laredo or those who will make this their first visit - welcome to our Gateway City!

HUNTING

South Texas hunting in Laredo's own Webb County is a world-renowned activity, and every season, the prize bucks inspire hunters from far and wide to seek out and beat a personal best record.

Ranch leases in the area are dedicated to hunting all types of game; even exotics can be found in the region. White-tailed deer reigns supreme over the land, along with dove and various other fowl and mammals. For more than 25 years, the Cola Blanca Big Buck Hunting Competition has been the premier venue for hunters from all over the United States and México.
