Nacogdoches History

Nacogdoches, the oldest town in Texas, is named for the Caddo family of Indians who once lived in the area. Local legend tells of a Caddo chief, living near the Sabine River, who sent his young adult twin sons in opposite directions to establish their own tribes. One brother, Natchitoches, traveled three days east toward the rising sun. The other brother, Nacogdoches, traveled three days west toward the setting sun. Settled in their new communities, the two brothers remained friendly and the road between them was well traveled. The road became a trade route and the eastern end of El Camino Real. Nacogdoches remained a Caddo Indian settlement until 1716 when Spain established the mission Nuestra Señora de Guadalupe de los Nacogdoches. In 1779, Antonio Gil Y'Barbo, a prominent Spanish trader, led a group of settlers to Nacogdoches. That same year, Nacogdoches received designation from Spain as a pueblo, or town, thereby making it the first "town" in Texas. Y'Barbo was named Lt. Governor of the new town and established the rules and laws under which the city was governed. He laid out streets with the intersecting El Camino Real and El Calle del Norte as his central point. On the main thoroughfare he built a stone house for use in his trading business. The house, or Old Stone Fort as it is called today, became a gateway from the United States to the vast Texas Frontier.

Over the next four decades, Nacogdoches and the Old Stone Fort became the site of three failed attempts to establish a Republic of Texas - the Magee-Gutierrez (1812), Long (1819) and Fredonia (1826) rebellions. Thus, nine flags have flown over Nacogdoches as opposed to the six that have flown over Texas.

The Nine Flags

FRENCH (1685-1689)

The French never actually settled in East Texas, but French intrusions into the area eventually forced the Spanish to establish permanent settlements in East Texas. Although the precise route is uncertain, La Salle and his men, on their ill-fated attempt to reach the Mississippi from their settlement on the Texas coast, must have come through East Texas.

SPANISH (1519-1821)

After several unsuccessful attempts during the early 1700s, the Spanish in 1721 were finally successful in establishing a series of six missions and two presidios in East Texas including Nuestra Señora de Guadalupe de los Nacogdoches located in the vicinity of present day Nacogdoches.

GUTIERREZ - MAGEE (1812-1813)

In 1812 the Old Stone Fort served as the headquarters during the first attempt to create a Texas Republic. Augustus Magee, a former lieutenant in the U.S. Army, joined forces with Bernardo Gutierrez and attempted to take Texas. Some major battles were fought with Mexican forces, but the group was defeated. Texas was declared a province of Mexico, which by this time had declared its independence from Spain.

DR. JAMES LONG (1819 - 1821)

In 1819, Dr. James Long of Natchez, Mississippi, led an expedition to claim Texas for the United States. Long made his headquarters at the Old Stone Fort, but his group was wiped out while he was on Galveston Island trying to obtain the assistance of the famous pirate and privateer, Jean Lafitte.

MEXICAN (1821 - 1836)

Mexico formally gained its independence from Spain in August of 1821. The Mexican years date from 1821 to 1836; during this period Nacogdoches grew in size and character. Immigration from the southern U.S. caused a shift to Anglo culture in Nacogdoches. Texas and Coahuila were organized as one state within the Mexican Confederation.

FREDONIA REBELLION (1826 - 1827)

The third attempt at independence from Mexico was known as the Fredonia Rebellion led by Haden Edwards. Mexico gave Edwards a contract to settle 800 families in the Nacogdoches area.

LONE STAR (1836 - 1846)

The Battle of Nacogdoches freed the areas east and north of San Antonio of all Mexican troops which allowed Texas the ultimate Declaration of Independence on March 2, 1836.

CONFEDERATE STARS & BARS (1861 - 1865)

After the revolution, settlement of Texas swept through Nacogdoches to the west. Nacogdoches prospered raising cotton and tobacco, producing timber and advancing slowly while keeping its status as a cultural, educational and religious center.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA (Since 1846)

On October 13, 1845, Texas voters overwhelmingly approved a United States annexation proposal. In December, President James K. Polk signed the Joint Resolution for the Admission of the State of Texas into the Union, making Texas the 28th state.

HISTORIC DOWNTOWN NACOGDOCHES

After getting your bearings at the Visitor Center, step onto the brick streets of downtown Nacogdoches and stroll the antique and specialty shops, art galleries, local eateries and live entertainment venues. Be sure to visit the Fire Museum, Railroad Depot and Museum and numerous historic landmarks in the downtown area. Self-Guided Walking Tour - Visit 15 points of interest in the downtown historic district. (Note: Guided walking tours are offered every Saturday in May.) Information, maps and brochures are available at the Visitor Center.

TRAILS OF NACOGDOCHES

Walk, hike, bike or just sit back and take in the natural beauty. Numerous trails offer activities to suit most any enthusiast. Most trails are along the creeks on the east and west side of downtown or on the Stephen F. Austin State University campus. Trail maps are available at the Visitor Center. Note: Some trails were created with the intermediate rider in mind and feature steep climbs, jumps and more challenging, twisting routes. All trails are dog-friendly but your canine friend must be on a leash.

Lanana Creek Trail - Originally an Indian footpath, this 5.89 mile trail weaves through thickets of paw-paw, dogwood and scarlet blooming buckeye. The trail begins at Liberty Hall on E. Main St.

Banita Creek Trail - This 1.9 mile trail is Nacogdoches' newest addition and winds through a pristine setting of shagbark hickory, Florida maples and tree sparkleberry and even includes waterfalls. The trail is located at the western end of Rusk St. Photo op: "Ab's chair", an 8 foot, 300 pound sculpture by local artist Jeffie Brewer.

SFA Interpretive Trail - Two trails spanning 3 miles take visitors into some of the most dynamic and scenic areas of this National Forest. Some 150 species of birds and 80 species of butterflies may be seen. From Hwy 7 West turn left on FM 2782.

GARDEN CAPITAL OF TEXAS

Discover why Nacogdoches has been designated by the Texas Legislature as the Garden Capital of Texas. From the largest azalea garden in the state to fall foliage and flowering trails that appear at almost every turn, Nacogdoches offers year-round beauty to the casual observer and the most serious gardener alike. The Garden Capital of Texas brochure is available at the Visitor Center and offers a complete list of gardens.

Ruby M. Mize Azalea Garden - Texas' largest azalea garden features more than 7,000 azaleas spread over 8 forested acres. The garden is located south of the SFA Johnson Coliseum on University Dr.

SFA Mast Arboretum - The first arboretum at a university in Texas, this on-campus garden spills over 19 acres and lies on a portion of the Lanana Creek Trail.

Pineywoods Native Plant Center - This 40-acre garden on the SFA campus is a unique mixture of uplands, mesic mid-slopes and wet creek bottoms. The Tucker House serves as the central feature of the property, which is surrounded by two miles of accessible trails through native forest and diverse gardens. Located at 2900 Raguet St.

Gayla Mize Garden - Take a stroll through this tranquil forest garden which includes Chinese fringe trees, deciduous hollies, azaleas, redbuds, dogwoods and camellias. East of University Dr. between Starr Ave. and College St.
