HISTORY OF WESTERN HERITAGE

In 1985, a few local cowboys formed teams to compete in authentic ranch activities that involved a scoring system used to determine who was the best working ranch. It was an event that not only challenged the participants but drew a crowd and established a way to support local charity.

Long before the name Western Heritage Classic was recognized, the ranch rodeo competition included five events - bronc riding, wild cow milking, team penning, team doctoring and calf branding. (Points are accumulated over a two-day period. The same format is still followed today.)

As the event began to grow, organizers set a goal to build a prestigious event that would preserve western heritage traditions. Activities during the annual event are designed to embody the essence of cowboy lifestyle and history. Everything that happens during the annual event ties back to the cowboy heritage and “the way it was” back on the ranch generations ago.

Today, the Western Heritage Classic is recognized internationally. Held on the grounds of the Taylor County Expo Center in Abilene, Texas the weekend event's showcase is the ranch rodeo; though it offers many activities that feature western interests, as well as history. These activities include the world's largest bit and spur show, a chuckwagon cookoff, cowboy matched horse races, children's rodeo and dummy roping, cowboy poets and western artisans, ranch horse clinics, western trade shows and a giant western parade. All of these events add to the wide range that Western Heritage Classic offers spectators each year.

We are also happy to host the RHAA National Finals during the WHC weekend. The top class finalists compete for the national title Saturday afternoon before an energized crowd.

The WHC Invitational Ranch Horse Sale was also added to the Saturday Schedule. This exclusive sale features working ranch horses offered from a select group of historic ranches.

The idea that started with a few cowboys gathering to have some fun and show off what they do for a living has turned into a spectacular four-day event and is enjoyed by thousands of Western Heritage Enthusiasts.
